TO CHECK DOUBLE TAX

Plan to Draft Protocols to Eliminate Taxes Abroad
at Conference

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1926, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—Will the United States be represented in the conference of tax experts to be held at Geneva in January to draft protocols whereby double taxation will be eliminated?

Business men who suffer the disadvantages of being taxed both in this country and abroad, as well as individuals, are asking this question of government officials here as they note that Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Holland, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Switzerland and Venezuela have announced that they intend to send the highest officials of their tax administration to attend.

GROWING EXPENSE

With the extension of American investments and trade outside of the United States, double taxation is becoming increasingly expensive. Many American manufacturers are being compelled in many instances to go to the trouble and expense of organizing subsidiary companies abroad and sometimes this means the sending of complicated audits so that the total business done both here and abroad may be ascertained and the exact amount of profit on business done abroad determined.

The United States pioneered in the matter of affording relief by inserting in the revenue act of 1921 a system of reciprocal exemptions on shipping profits which has since been adopted by other commercial nations. Professor T. S. Adams of Yale, George May of Chicago, Walter Doherty and Company, in the meantime have been cooperating with representatives of other countries at meetings held by the international chamber of commerce or committees of the league of nations with the hope of finding a uniform plan to eliminate double taxation on all kinds of incomes.

TO CONSIDER RESOLUTION

The resolutions drafted by these experts will form the basis of discussion at the January meeting. The program includes draft conventions with respect to double taxation as well as tax evasion and there is also a protocol on judicial assistance in the collection of taxes. The conventions adopted will serve as models for agreements between individual countries. The difference in tax systems of various countries makes a general convention or treaty impracticable.

Up to now the views of the debtor countries have in most cases been accepted as Great Britain alone has represented the viewpoint of the creditor country. It is known that debtor countries as well as Great Britain are anxious to have views of American experts but because the meeting is to be held under the auspices of the league of nations there is a fear of obstacles may be placed in the path of American cooperation. The United States is not asked to sign any political agreement but simply to aid in drafting a set of principles which will serve as guides to various governments in setting up two-party agreements. Decision rests with the president, who must ask for the necessary appropriation, and congress where authorization for such delegates must be given.

TESTIFIES

KASCHOLK ON STAND IN OHIO MURDER TRIAL

State Witness Tells of Mc-Dermott's Threat Against Canton Publisher

Courthouse, Canton, Ohio—(AP)—The record of Steve Kascholk, state's star witness in the first degree murder trial of Patrick Eugene McDermott, was brought out on Tuesday during cross-examination by E. L. Mills of defense counsel.

Because Kascholk is admitted by counsel for both sides to be "an important witness" in the state's efforts to convict McDermott of the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, the defense attack on the youth was vigorous. Implication of Kascholk in statutory charges in connection with Mary Chermey of Manty, Mo., Pa., and in non-support charges in connection with his wife, also residing in Manty Mo., were brought out. Much of the morning's session during direct examination of Kascholk after the court had ruled, admitting his testimony was taken up by arguments of the momentary objections by defense counsel.

RODE BY HOME

Kascholk told the story of riding by the Mellett home in a street car with McDermott and testified that he told him "that's where the editor lives we're going to slug." The witness testified he told McDermott "He didn't want that kind of life. He wanted to make his money honestly."

Under the fire of Mills' cross examination Kascholk stuck to his story. Mills tried to wring from his admissions that he was unable to identify Louis Mazer, one of the alleged conspirators, but was unable to do so.

During the morning it was learned that the state has a surprise witness in William Betzler who the state claims saw McDermott in Canton with a gun the night of the murder.

NAB JAIL-BREAKER IN ILLINOIS CITY

Oshkosh Youth Is Recaptured
After Robbery in Bensonville Bakery

Oshkosh—(AP)—Louis Lentz, 18-year-old Oshkosh youth who broke jail here Wednesday morning with Frank Fellows, Jr., 17, was captured Sunday afternoon in a deserted shack near Bensonville, Ill., by Dupageco officers. The capture followed a robbery of a Bensonville bakery in which Fellows participated. Fellows was arrested here Saturday when he returned to his home. Lentz pleaded guilty Tuesday morning to an auto theft here Nov. 29, when he was captured after a mad chase by Oshkosh police, in which five shots were fired at the fugitive and the stolen car was wrecked. He was sentenced to from one to ten years at Waupun. He has already served a term at Green Bay for larceny.

The two boys used four cars in their break for liberty during which they traveled as far north as Fremont and back through the center of state, through Janesville, where another car was stolen and into Illinois. They obtained a revolver in a robbery at Waupaca the day of their escape. They were fired upon and pursued by Bensonville authorities after the bakery store robbery there Friday but escaped and returned to Oshkosh. Lentz then went back to Bensonville and was taken. Fellows was taken to the state industrial school following sentence for the attempted robbery of several Oshkosh stores.

RESTORE FRAZIER TO RANKS OF G. O. P.

Good Fellows Preserve Peace, Faith In Homes

There is an Appleton man in the penitentiary at Waupun.

Nothing particularly startling in that bare statement. However, several years before this man's enforced retirement from the ordinary channels of society he was married and became the father of three children.

Rarely does a convicted man leave for the state's prison who has had either opportunity or foresight sufficient to provide for the needs of his family during the period of his incarceration.

This man is no exception.

In Appleton there is a mother and three children. They know but do not quite comprehend that their father is in prison.

The children are young enough to know that there is a Santa Claus. The mother provides a pittance for the necessities of life—some of them—through state aid and her own sporadic earnings.

Have you ever been the object of spasmodic charity?

This family has been and is.

The state recognizes that where moral conditions justify it families should be held together where the father is either dead or imprisoned.

Have you ever been led to believe that the state indulges any whimsies regarding Santa Claus?

In three stove heated rooms—far from magnificently furnished—a mother is holding her little family in home ties.

There is a small boy—only five years old—cruelly crippled as the result of infantile paralysis. That makes his mother's earnings sporadic. Neighbors and organized charity at best usually for lack funds, must necessarily be spasmodic in their efforts to relieve suffering.

This small boy believes implicitly in Santa Claus.

He is not responsible for his father's sins—although soon enough he will start to bear the family burden of disgrace.

Should his belief, his implicit faith be shattered?

The Good Fellows Club of Appleton believes that it should not.

Perhaps after you have turned the page and filled out the club coupon it will be your donation that will help to bring Santa Claus into this stricken home.

Isn't it worth while to do it now?

FLAMES RAZE CITY HALL AT PLATTEVILLE

Platteville Fire Does $80,000
Damage; 150 Persons
Flee from Theatre

Platteville—(AP)—Fire swept the city hall here Monday night doing $80,000 damage, and caused 150 persons attending the Strand theatre to flee down a fire escape from the third floor of the threatened structure.

Dubaque and Platteville firemen made a futile attempt to save the building whose destruction left the city Tuesday without a home for its city government. The fire, believed to have originated from overheating of a furnace, had gained considerable headway when discovered and firemen were handicapped through working in five degrees below zero weather.

SAVE OTHER BUILDINGS

The firemen did succeed in saving nearby buildings which were threatened when the fire reached its height. The cinema theatre is on the second floor of the building. The film was being run for the second performance and the audience of 500 had dwindled to 150 when smoke trickled up the stairway and delivered an ominous warning of danger.

With their escape cut off in that direction the audience went up stairs to the balcony, led by J. H. Lewis, newspaper correspondent. From there they climbed to safety down a fire escape. Two or three women were overcome by smoke and faint and were carried out, but they were revived without difficulty when they reached the outdoors.

The city hall was built in 1883. It housed all the city officers and the police department.

HUSBAND AIDS IN GIRL BANDIT CASE

Young Attorney Married
Bradley Girl at University of Texas in October

Austin, Texas—(AP)—Otis Rogers, young Amarillo attorney who maintained secrecy regarding his marriage last year to Rebecca Bradley, while they were students at the University of Texas, Tuesday was to make his first appearance in district court in defense of his wife who is charged with robbing the Farmers National bank at Budda.

Married at Georgetown, Texas, last October, they continued their university courses, the husband graduating from the law college while his bride was awarded a bachelor of arts degree. They decided that Rogers' come as an attorney might prove inadequate to support a home and agreed to separate while he developed his practice.

Rebecca obtained a position as stenographer in the office of Dan Moody, attorney general and governor-elect, and continued her university work with the view of securing a higher degree. Rogers opened a law office at Amarillo and so well did they guard their secret that Rebecca's mother, with whom she lives here, denied the marriage when Otis announced he was coming to the defense of his wife.

Roosevelt's Sister And Wilson's Aide In Clash

New York—(AP)—A sister of Theodore Roosevelt and the head of Woodrow Wilson's wartime committee on public information have clashed publicly over the war president's ideals and visions.

In the midst of hundreds of Wilson admirers, Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson questioned George Creel Monday after his speech in town hall, explaining his view of his former chief's personality.

Mr. Creel said that Wilson's vision foresaw "a tragedy of disappointment coming" even before the peace conference, due to the lapse in idealism that followed the armistice.

"It is well for great souls such as these if, like Lincoln, they can die at the moment of their greatest achievement," he said. "There is nothing in the world more savage, more cruel and inhuman than a people's reaction from its own idealism."

Questions were invited. Mrs. Robinson, who had been occupying an aisle seat, arose and in a voice that carried to every corner of the hall asked: "If Mr. Wilson had so much vision as you say he had, why did he not enter the war sooner and save thousands of lives?"

Some applause greeted the question but it was drowned in the buzz of excitement. Mr. Creel answered:

"He did not enter the war sooner because, for one thing, New York and the Atlantic seaboard are not America. It would have been impossible to commit the American people to war any earlier."

Mrs. Robinson was unsatisfied. When other questioners arose with other topics, Mrs. Robinson left the hall.

NORTH DAKOTA SENATOR GETS OLD OFFICES

Action Designed to Heal Breach Caused by Ejection
of Insurgents

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Banned after the 1924 election as political undesirable in the Republican ranks, Senator Frazier, North Dakota insurgent, was formally welcomed back into the fold Tuesday by unanimous vote of the Republican senate conference committee.

Senator Frazier was not present when the action, which will automatically invite him to all party conferences in the future, was taken. It also was voted to confer recommendations, made by the committee on committees which put Senator Frazier in line for the chairmanship of the Indian committee after March 4, and reinstating him to his former place on other committees.

Designation of Senators Norris, Nebraska, as chairman of the judiciary committee; McNary, Oregon; as chairman of agriculture committee; Phipps, Colorado, as chairman of the irrigation committee; and Couzens, Michigan, as chairman of the education and labor committee also was approved.

TO HEAL BREACH

The action in the Frazier case was designed to heal the breach caused by the party councils of those Republican insurgents who supported the late Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, in his independent campaign for the presidency.

The North Dakota senator is the only one of those deprived of his party status now in the senate and soon after the election last month, which reduced the Republican majority to the vanishing point, steps were taken to bring him back into the party conferences.

RIVERS AND HARBORS

The senate faced the long pending row over distribution of rivers and harbors money Tuesday as the $50,000,000 bill finally became the order of business under an agreement reached.

WARDENS' SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM

Ex-convict Sentenced After Confessing Murder of Two Game Wardens

Marquette, Mich.—(AP)—Roy A. Nunn, ex-convict who was convicted Monday night of the slaying of Arvid Erickson and Emil Skoglund, game wardens, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The warden was killed Sept. 22. Nunn, arrested several days later, confessed to killing the men and led officers to a lake where he had thrown the bodies after weighting them down.

The warden, it was said, had planned to question Nunn in connection with reports that he had been "head-lighting" deer. The method consists of throwing a string spotlight into the woods at night which attract the deer and they fall an easy prey to hunters. The state game law prohibits such practice.

YOUTH HANGS SELF IN JAIL AT GREEN BAY

Green Bay—(AP)—Raymond Ducat, 23, implicated in several box car robberies and held under $11,500 bonds for trial with Joe Kuchesi, committed suicide in the county jail Monday night by hanging himself with strips of a torn bed sheet. A confession is reported to have been found on his person. The act was discovered Tuesday morning when a jail attendant served breakfast.

Britain Behind America In Religion, Survey Says

New York—(AP)—America possibly is more religious than England, first returns in a nationwide religious census indicate, and the rest of the country has greater faith than has New York that there is a God.

Eighty-nine per cent of 50,000 readers of 150 newspapers in 40 states have replied to a question whether they believe in God while in a similar campaign only 73 per cent of the readers of the London Daily News expressed belief in a "personal God."

Commentators call attention to the more limited definition of the London questionnaire. The American questionnaires were sent out in connection with a campaign on religion by the church advertising department of the International Advertising association and were drafted by 100 clergymen. Answers are to be received for another week.

The question "Do you believe in immortality?" brought a response of 85 per cent in the affirmative, while the same question in the London Daily News brought 10,611 affirmative answers and 3,175 negative answers.

The ratio of belief to disbelief was almost the same to all questions published in the questionnaire in this country and in nearly every case was somewhat higher than the same ratio in England.

Answers to other questions in the questionnaire showed 80 per cent believe the Bible as inspired work; 70 per cent regularly attend church services; 79 per cent would not want their family to grow up in a churchless community; 17 per cent send their children to schools for religious instruction and 90 per cent believe religion in some form a necessary element of the community.

ASKS CONGRESS TO PROBE FORD CHARGE

New York Representative Says Allegations Against Jew Reflect on U. S.

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The revived controversy over Henry Ford's opinion of the "International Jew" has been brought into the congressional picture by Representative Sol Bloom, Democrat, New York.

Investigation by a house committee of several of the sources of information on which the Detroit manufacturer based his charges in a statement several days ago, that "The International Jew is in direct control of all financial centers of government, including the United States Federal Reserve system," is being sought by the New York representative.

He would direct the committee "to inquire into the truth or falsity" concerning the operation of the government, the activities of the federal reserve system and the Jewish people."

The committee would have the right to subpoena witnesses and documents dealing with the investigation which would be aimed primarily at the part of Ford's statement quoted.

"Believing such a statement is untrue and without foundation, Representative Bloom declared in a statement, "my resolution will permit Mr. Ford to substantiate his charges against the federal reserve system."

HUGE ELEPHANT ROOMS AT LIBERTY IN KANSAS

Garnett, Kas.—(AP)—Diamond, six-ton elephant which escaped from the winter quarters of a circus at Quenemo, Saturday, has been cornered in a field near here, but leaders of a posse assigned to "get him dead or alive" were skeptical as to their ability to capture him Tuesday. The posse was organized by county authorities after Diamond had wrecked numerous small farm buildings, killed a pig and frightened scores of persons by his attempts to enter buildings.

SEW BUCK'S HEAD ON DOE; TWO ARRESTED

Superior—(AP)—The head of a buck deer sewed to the carcass of a doe was confiscated by Game Warden James McNaughton in Burnett county last week, it was revealed Tuesday when Warden McNaughton returned to Superior, his headquarters. Two farmers in a truck with the faked buck tried to escape. McNaughton, then 20 miles in their automobile. The warden wouldn't stop and finally Deputy J. E. ## FASTEST DROP OF MERCURY IN HISTORY

Little Prospect of Warmer
Weather Promised Before
Wednesday

EIGHT DIE IN MIDWEST Fires Drive Families from Homes in Larger Cities of Country

Milwaukee—(AP)—The coldest weather of the season came to Wisconsin overnight and sub-zero temperatures ranging from 8 below in Milwaukee to 26 at Superior prevailed Tuesday with little prospect of warmer weather before Wednesday.

Fulfillment of the prognostications of the weather bureau brought only one person to a hospital here for frost bite.

W. P. Stewart, meteorologist, announced that the rapidly with which the mercury tabographed 40 degrees in 24 hours had approached an all-time record for Milwaukee. The thermometer registered 48 at 7 o'clock Monday morning and stood at 8 below 24 hours later.

25 MILE WIND

The wind which gained a maximum velocity of 25 miles an hour several times played strange tricks on the Manhattan building here. A gust blew a hole in the false wall. The bricks crashed through the skylight of an adjoining building. Several narrowly missed two motorists.

Working under the adverse conditions brought by the extreme cold weather 100 men labored throughout the day to free the catenary Pere Marquette, No. 18, still fast on the rocks of Fox point where it was stranded early Monday. There appeared little prospect of releasing the laden catenary, bound for Manitowish, via Milwaukee, before Wednesday night.

The Pere Marquette, catenary No. 20, has been tied up alongside her.

NO WRONG IN DOHENY LOAN DEFENSE SAYS

Fall-Doheny Attorneys Sum Up Evidence; Case to Jury Wednesday

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The defense began Tuesday its final attempt to beat back the tide of prosecution argument in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial. With every prospect that the case would be in the hands of the jury by sundown Wednesday a succession of defense attorneys were called to the stand in a period in which to tell the jury there was no taint of guilt in Edward L. Doheny's loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, while Fall was in the cabinet and before Doheny was awarded the lease to the Elk Hills oil reserve. Except for a half hour at the opening of court, during which Owen J. Roberts for the government, completed the prosecution argument, began Monday, the defense was given all of Tuesday's session for their replies.

Roberts repeated again the charge that the $100,000 was part of a conspiracy to defraud the government. He also asked the jurors to consider that Joseph J. Cotten, vice president Doheny's Pan-American company and Doheny's confidential agent in the oil negotiations, had not been called to the witness stand.

NEVER CALLED TO STAND

"Cotton was the one man who knew all the angles of the case and was never called to the stand," he said.

Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for Doheny, was the first of the defense lawyers to take up the argument.

He denied directly Roberts' charge that any wrong-doing attended the $100,000 transaction, which he described as nothing but a loan given by Doheny to his friend of 37 years standing.

CAN'T WRECK CHARACTER

Hogan said that "no case before a jury ever has succeeded on character-wrecking and the destruction of reputations."

"You have heard from the able, if not fair, counsel that there was a bribe of $100,000 in this case," he continued. "I ask you if you believe in your heart of hearts that old gentleman (Doheny) to Doheny) who has dug into the earth with his own bare hands, if you believe, even after you saw him pilloried here by a Philadelphia lawyer, that the old man would stoop to bribing a friend of his youth in order to swindle and cheat the land he loved?"

MURDERED MAN CHICAGO GANGSTER, COPS THINK

Chicago—(AP)—The bullet-riddled and badly charred body found on a lonely prairie south of the city Monday night was that of a gangster shooting victim, police decided Tuesday, but the identity of the murdered man was shadowed in doubt. ## WORT WILL ATTEND SHIPPERS' MEETING

Report of Special Committee Will Be Presented on Trunk Line Rates

T. G. Wort, general traffic manager of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, will attend a meeting at Chicago Wednesday at which work of the shippers steering committee of the western trunk line will be reviewed. All shippers receiving a commercial organization interested in class rates within western trunk line territory have been invited to be present or send representatives. G. C. Campbell, secretary of the traffic division of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association, urged all shippers to send managers to attend the session. The meeting will be open at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Hotel LaSalle.

At a meeting of the shippers, receivers and commercial organizations at Chicago on March 23, 1925, which Mr. Wort attended, approval was given to the recommendations of the shippers steering committee of the Intercollegiate Commerce commission, one of which provided that carriers and shippers would attempt to effect a permanent adjustment of class rates in western trunk line territory and between that territory and the adjacent eastern territory. For this purpose the shippers steering committee was asked to take in members from adjoining territories.

This was done and the committee will make its report at the session.

The case of Jacob Power, a machinist, against the C. and N. W. railroad, in which Mr. Power is suing for $500 for alleged loss of tools entrusted to the railroad company for transit, was expected to go to the jury in municipal court shortly after noon Tuesday. The tools, according to the testimony, were shipped from Kenosha to Appleton two years ago. Mr. Power contends that the case was opened and valuable machine instruments stolen.

Temperatures Tumble Spectacularly Throughout Central West Area

Chicago—(P)—Temperatures across the mid section of the central west in the van of a cold wave sweeping into the heart of the country from Alaska. As the storm crossed the Rockies and the northwest plains, it left heavy snow and the coldest temperatures for decades and it was responsible for deaths and accidents in a dozen states. Six fatalities were attributed to the storm in the Pacific northwest.

In Minneapolis C. B. Haskins, 72, was found dead in a snow bank in the rear of his home. He had been overcome by the cold.

An engine was derailed in the storm near Northrop, Minn., and passengers bound for the Twin Cities walked a mile through drifted snow to reach a rescue train. Three youths crashed their car into a train at Hager, Wis., in blinding snow, but were unhurt.

Temperatures of 21 below zero at Wilder, Mont., 30 below at Crookston, Minn., were recorded, and as the storm advanced Nebraska and Iowa let the first sub-zero weather of the season.

SCHOOLS CLOSED
Schools were closed because of the severity of the storm at Duluth and at Watertown, S. D. Mankato, Minn., reported 10 foot snow drifts.

Monday night, the weather bureau reported the cold weather will be about the coldest yet west with temperatures dropping to below zero.

KELLOGG STILL IS ACTIVE GOLFER IN SPITE OF 70 YEARS

Bats Way Around Course in 86; Hear Rumors of Resignation Before 1929

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — Secretary of State
Frank B. Kellogg, despite his 70 years, still manages to get around a golf course in creditable fashion. He returned from Pinehurst recently, telling of a first round made in 86,
which is not so good for a Bobby Jones but not so bad for a white-haired secretary of state.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon,
however, is a better preserved specimen than Kellogg. Mellon is 72, but he looks younger, and is more active than his fellow cabinet member.
Both men recently have been the subject of resignation rumors, but there is no surface evidence that these are well-founded. As 1928 draws near, with the important taxation problems which must be worked out in the interim, President Coolidge and his party will need Mellon more than ever.

Kellogg is by no means tired of his post and if he intends to resign before March 4, 1929, he presumably would prefer to wait until he has had opportunity to achieve some important strokes in international relations.

GAVEL AND PIPE CROP
Secretaries to Vice President Charles G. Dawes are preparing for the general's annual crop of gavels and pipes. Dawes probably has the finest collection of each in the capital.

More than a dozen gavels have been presented to him since he became president of the senate, although the one he uses in the upper house is not really a gavel at all, but only the ivory head of a gavel, which Dawes keeps in his hand.

The last gavel to come was made by Henry J. Paustian, an instructor in manual arts at Junior High School, Grand Island, Neb., and cut from the wood of the old Supreme Court chamber at Lincoln.

Mr. Paustian will doubtless be glad to hear that his gavel was, at last accounts, resting on the vice president's desk in the vice president's office, while less favored gavels were tucked away in more obscure places along with the pipes.
Other gavel-givers include some of the oldtime whittlers in backwoods districts.

Owing to the fame of Dawes' understanding briar, the mails bring twice as many pipes to him as gavels. They come in all shapes and sizes. They come in all shapes and a new variety, generally send one to Dawes, hoping that he will use it and insure the type a big sale.

DILL RADIO BILL
The Dill bill, out of which radio legislation seems bound to come during the present session, was really born when Senator C. C. Dill of Washington began to experiment with a self-built one-tube set in his home back in 1923.

Small stations in the northwest began to close down and Dill investigated this curtailment of his personal amusement, to find that they were being forced out of business by royalties demanded for use of copyright music. So Dill's first radio bill was designed to provide that copyright laws should not apply to music reproduced from broadcasting stations.

The stations began to charge for broadcasting time and the situation righted itself, but Dill had begun an intensive study of the whole radio situation with the result that when the need of radio legislation began to be apparent he probably knew more about it than any other man in the senate.

SPECIAL DELIVERY TO FOUR FOREIGN NATIONS

A special delivery service to Japan,
Finland, Lithuania and Austria, effective Dec. 15, has been announced by registered, in the regular mails will be subject to this special service when 20 cents is paid in addition to the regular ania, an internal fee equivalent to five cents United States currency is collected from the addresses of special delivery articles destined to a locality situated outside the city. In Japan charges are made according to the distance of the addressee from the post-

Pasture Where Wrights Flew Is Aviation Field

Dayton, O. — The little pasture
where Orville and Wilbur Wright conducted their early experiments in flying years ago is the nucleus for the greatest center of aviation activity in the United States, now in the final stages of materialization.
Completion of a few buildings and the removal here from Washington
of the headquarters of the material division of the U. S. Army Air corps are all that are needed to bring the most gigantic peace-time undertaking in the history of aviation to fruition. Air corps officials say it will be accomplished by July 1, 1927, although movement of certain sections from McCook field to the new field will begin in December.

NEW 5000 ACRE TRACT
The "little pasture" has grown to a 5000 acre tract which includes the new Wright field and the Fairfield Air Intermediate depot. Wright field, which was given to the War department by citizens of Dayton and surrounding territory, ranks today
among the largest of the government's projects.

All the engineering activities now
at McCook field, and, all the activities of the supply division at Washington will be transferred to Wright field, where they will operate under one head. Under a new alignment of functions in the air corps, the engineering and supply divisions are fused in the material division, when it is made up of the engineering, procurement and field service sections.

TO DO ALL TESTING
The engineering section will be responsible for all experimental and development work, including testing.
The procurement section will have charge of purchasing and production, and the field service section will direct the supply and maintenance of field units and the disposal of worn-out and salvaged equipment.

The repair and supply depots at Middletown, Pa., Fairfield, O., San Antonio, and San Diego, the storage depot at Little Rock, the lighter-than-air depot at Scott Field, Ill., and the district procurement offices at New York, Akron, Seattle, and Santa Monica, also will be supervised from Dayton.

Removal of the supply division
headquarters here from Washington is in itself a revolutionary step, and the air corps is the first branch of the army to thus sever its procurement service from army headquarters.

The results of the move are expected to be far-reaching. The prime factors in the project were economy and efficiency.
Wright field will cost the government more than $5,000,000 according to the program originally outlined.
Already $1,500,000 has been appropriated, and the work is being pushed by a small army of engineers and workmen.

Two huge hangers will provide housing facilities for airplanes. An immense laboratories building is being erected. An administration building, final assembly and machine shop, propeller testing equipment, warehouses, power plants and other buildings dot

the field. When the field is completed, not a wire will appear above ground.
The striking feature of the field will be the 500-acre cross-shaped landing field. It is a blue-grass-covered tract over which one can ride at high speed in an automobile with the smoothness of a paved highway.

SEND ORMISTON WARRANT TO CHICAGO BY AIRPLANE

Chicago—(AP)—Kenneth G. Ormiston, sought for six months and now "found"
for five days, soon will know who wants him. The Los Angeles radio man, charged with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice in connection with Alvin Karpis Mc-Mahon kidnapping case, has been inspection in Chicago since Friday night, with Chicago police declining to arrest him without a warrant.
That warrant, dispatched from Los Angeles by airmail is expected Tuesday and although it may force Ormiston before a judge, it will mark the beginning of a fight against extradition to the west coast city.

MENASHA CAGERS TO PLAY AT WEST DEPERE ON FRIDAY

Coach Calder's Team Anticipates Hard Struggle in Second Game

Menasha—The local high school basketball team will go to West De Pere Friday evening to play the strong West De Pere team in Nicolet high gymnasium there. Coach Calder is brushing up a few of the weak spots unearthed in his machine in the close 9 to 8 game at the reformatory gymnasium last Friday at De Pere.

West De Pere was the strong contender at the tournament last year at Appleton and all but one player is on the team this year. Coach Calder expects a stiff encounter, but the boys are determined to add another victory to their schedule. Members of the high school faculty will drive the boys to De Pere.

The first home game will take place at S. A. Cook armory on Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, with the Oshkosh high school team.

Menasha high school schedule follows: Dec. 17, West De Pere, there; Dec. 22, Oshkosh, here; Jan. 21, Neenah; Jan. 28, Two Rivers, there; Feb. 4, Clintonville, here; Feb. 9, East De Pere, here; Feb. 11, Oconto, here; Feb. 8, Neenah; Feb. 25, New London, there; March 4, Oconto, there.

ASSOCIATION OFFERS PRIZE IN SEAL SALE

Menasha—A prize offered by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association for this year's Christmas seal sale will be of interest to Twin City Christians seal purchasers.

One clinic is offered to the city of 7,500 to 20,000 population having the highest per capita sale of seals. This will be a four day clinic with two physicians and one social worker. In connection with the prize clinics a health exhibit will be given.

The seal sale of last year provided three chest clinics, one school clinic in Neenah and one school clinic in Menasha, a general adult clinic for residents of Neenah and Menasha, $100 for dental corrective work in Menasha schools, and $100 for dental corrective work in Neenah schools. Five dollars a month has also been voted to assist in maintaining the child welfare clinic sponsored by the Visiting Nurse association of the Twin Cities and conducted by the state board of health.

DISTRIBUTE SEALS AT MENASHA SCHOOLS

Menasha—Christmas seals and bonds have been distributed to the high school and grades. The children are to take their money to school for the stamps. Each class in high school and each grade room will try and purchase a bond. Coupons are attached to the bond and can be exchanged for the stamps.

The children will not go from house to house selling the stamps this year but will try and buy a bond. Each room has the following wording on the blackboard: "Our bond is worth (?) today." Each day the total amount collected is inserted after the word worth.

Miss Alice Anderson of the high school commercial department has charge of the campaign in the local high school.

FLAGMAN FEEDS BIRDS DAILY NEAR HIS SHANTY

Menasha—Since the heavy snow Peter Kasper, flagman at Tayco-st, railroad crossing has been feeding bread crumbs to a flock of sparrows that seek shelter from the cold beneath eaves of the John Strange Paul company factory building. The crumbs were placed in a wooden box on the ground near the flagman's shanty and it was not long before they were discovered by an Airdale that scooped them up on his frequent visits. The box now contains several pounds of sharp nails driven up through the bottom at intervals of half an inch and it is needless to say that the sparrows no longer have their food molested.

WOMEN ADOPT STANDARD COLLEGE ATHLETIC GARB

New London, Conn., (AP)—Styles in athletic garb for undergraduates in Connecticut college for women are going to stay "put" hereafter and not change at the whim of the students themselves.

The freshman's costume is a "hockey tunic." Succeeding classes will use it and until each in turn arrives at the dignity of senior rank. The tunic is navy blue with white blouse, the instructors wearing black in contrast. The chief points in the costume are that they are neat, tailored and comfortable.

No, The Old Texan Ranch Aint What It Used To Be

Menard, Tex.—(AP)—Otto Carlin lighted a new oil lamp, drew water with a pump, examined one of the new iron nails which were rapidly displacing the old wooden pegs, and thought it was progress. But he kept a few of the old candles on hand and preserved the old canteen bucket for safety. That was 1877, and the place was the famous 100,000 acre Las Moras ranch. Otto's assignees and descendants now press a button. Magic lamps glow, meals cook, chills hatch, pumps draw water, saw cut wood, sheep are clipped, refrigerators refrigerate, grinders grind, and waffle irons waffle. They just push a button. Electricity also is transforming the cattle ranches.

CHANGE IN 50 YEARS

Life moves with a swifter tempo on the land which Otto Carlin blocked out 50 years ago. Otto would not know the place.

at the last session. The agreement appeared to have the senate in an iron-clad arrangement to force a vote on the controversial subject before the Christmas holidays.

Beginning Monday debate will be limited to one hour for each member for discussion of the bill and 30 minutes upon any amendment. After 3 o'clock Tuesday no senator can speak more than once or longer than 15 minutes on the bill or amendment.

TWO MAIN ISSUES

Two main issues stand out—the St. Lawrence River-Tidewater project and the Lakes-to-Gulf Waterway dispute. The bill, however, as passed by the house, also touches projects in virtually every section of the country and is filled with fighting possibilities. In addition the senate commerce committee increased by $6,500,000 the allotment for a power flood control and irrigation survey and, where the house voted to permit improvement of the Missouri river above Kansas City to Sioux City at a total cost of $50,000,000 the committee decided to limit this to $12,000,000.

Great Lakes states, with the exception of Illinois, are waging war on the provision for a 9-foot channel 200 feet wide in the Illinois river from Utica, Ill., to the mouth of the river at a cost of $3,500,000. Opponents contend this will further lower the lake's level and hinder navigation.

The proposal for an appropriation for a survey of a canal across New York state, connecting Lake Erie and Lake Ontario with the Hudson river, also is a target which promises to draw considerable fire.

BUSINESS OF HOUSE

BLACK COFFEE, LIQOR FED MEXICAN INFANTS

Mexico City—(AP)—Federal health authorities are attempting to convince Mexican mothers that pulque, a native intoxicating drink, strong black coffee and fiery chili peppers are far from food for young children. They hope thus to reduce the Mexican infant mortality rate, said to be the highest in the world.

Among the Mexican masses there is a tradition that unless a baby is given pulque when two months old the child will never be able to talk. Pulque is fermented juice of the maguey plant, carrying a heavy alcoholic kick. The custom of feeding it to infants is widespread among the ignorant masses.

It also is usual for babies, as soon as they are weaned, to be given the ordinary diet of Mexican adults. The child is switched abruptly from mother's milk to beans, tortillas and meat stew, all so hot with red and green peppers that few adults foreigners can swallow the fiery compounds. The baby washes this down with thick black Mexican coffee. It the child lives he eats, likes and thrives upon this fare all his life.

A simple method of preserving sweet coffee without any loss in flavor is being sought through experiments at Ohio State University.

Process cheese bearing a varietal name is made from cheese of the variety indicated by the name and conforms to the limits of moisture and fat for cheese of that variety.

Governor-Elect Shows Most Uncanny Memory

Madison—(P)—An uncanny memory for names and faces, which was developed when he shouted "extra" as a newsboy on the streets of Milwaukee, is one of the outstanding personal traits of Fred R. Zimmerman, newly elected governor of Wisconsin.

The ability to recognize people and call them by their name after meeting them once, combined with unusual informality of manner has given the new state leader the reputation of knowing more people in Wisconsin than any other man.

At a banquet in Madison recently, the governor-elect was asked by a fellow guest to identify another guest at the opposite end of the banquet table. The identification along with other facts was quickly forthcoming.

Finding such ready response, the guest asked the names of others in the room, and Mr. Zimmerman clinched the affair by naming every guest and giving their occupation, much to the surprise of those near him.

Born November 20, 1880, of American parents of Teutonic extraction, Mr. Zimmerman is a product of environment common to the German communities built up on the west shore of Lake Michigan.

His grandparents were German refugees of the Revolution of 1818. His paternal grandfather was a Bavarian and his mother's father emigrated from Wurttemberg. His father was born in the state of New York and his mother in Milwaukee.

When he was five years old, Mr. Zimmerman's father died. It was this which sent him out on the streets at an early age to contribute to the support of his family by selling papers. At the age of thirteen he was employed at the Pfister-Vogel leather company and later at the International Harvester company in Milwaukee. This was followed by a venture into the cement and sewer pipe business "on his own" as he expresses it.

During the war he was in the lumber business for three years but in 1919 sold out and entered the service of the Nash Motor company and continued with that firm until elected secretary of state in 1922. His election was partly the result of the action of friends who brought about his candidacy without consulting him. Serving a second term, Mr. Zimmerman struck out for the Republican nomination for governor which he won by a plurality of approximately 37,000 votes over Attorney General Herman L. Ekern.

At the November election Mr. Zimmerman received a clear majority of over 115,000 votes and a plurality of 74,000 over his nearest opponent.

The first lady of the state formerly was Amanda Froedy whose father was born in Germany and migrated to America with his parents when he was a child.

LETTS URGES BUILDING OF GRAIN ELEVATORS

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Government erection and operation of big storage grain elevators at rail crossings in the upper Mississippi valley, to harmonize with existing barge lines and waterways was urged upon President Coolidge as a farm relief measure Monday by Representative Letts, Republican, Iowa.

The proposal is contained in a resolution adopted by the Upper Mississippi River association and by the Iowa Banking association. The plan, it is argued, would aid railroads in the orderly movement of crops and enable farmers to realize immediately upon crops through government bonded warehouse receipts.

Representative Letts said the need of such elevators was felt especially at Minneapolis, St. Paul, La Crosse, Dubuque and Peoria.

MOTHER RETURNS GIRL TO SCHOOL AFTER FINE

A fine of $5 and costs made a mother and girl see the value of school, according to the city attendance officer, who reported the enrollment Monday of a truant girl at the Appleton vocational school.

The girl, a minor, was found not responsible for her delinquency, by Judge Theodore H. Berg, of the municipal court, last week. The mother was given the alternative of a fine of five days in the city jail. She maintained "her girl did not have to go to school." The court answered that if her daughter was not in school Monday, that other fines would follow.

ONE TWELVE CORNERS HUNTER SHOTS BUCK

Frank Wagner of Twelve Corners, was the only hunter from that village to return with a deer. He bagged a 130 pound buck in the vicinity of Newell last week. Arnold Miller, also of Twelve Corners, failed to secure a deer.

The court answered that if her daughter was not in school Monday, that other fines would follow.

TAXATION AND ETHICS

Outagamie county supervisors at their special session last week proved, that at least temporarily, that there is more than one way to skin a cat but they also indicated a disregard for political ethics and for fairness that astounded Outagamie county and especially Appleton taxpayers. The supervisors admitted they have no right to raise in excess of approximately $175,000 for highway purposes when they repealed resolutions authorizing expenditures of $240,000 more, but, without blinking an eye they voted to levy the $240,000 for general fund purposes, intending to take it out of the general fund and spend it on highways whenever or wherever they pleased. Whether this high-handed method of highway financing will be successful remains to be seen. The Post-Crescent does not pretend to know anything about the legality of this procedure, but it would seem that there must be considerable laxity in the laws if such a tax levy is illegal by one application and becomes legal by a mere subterfuge. At any rate the procedure of the county board is not ethical.

The tax situation now is worse than it was before the special board meeting. In November the board voted to raise the $240,000 for specific highway improvement purposes and the money could be spent only on those projects for which it was raised. Among the specific appropriations was $20,000 for improving Wisconsin Avenue in Appleton.

But when the board repealed the November levies and voted to add $240,000 to the general fund it removed all restrictions governing this huge expenditure and the money may be used at the "discretion" of the board or the highway commission. There is no assurance now that a dollar of this money will be spent in Appleton.

The temper of at least part of the board was indicated by one supervisor who warned that "if Appleton tries to make any trouble about spending money from the general fund not a cent will be spent in the city." This same supervisor declared that he and the board didn't care what Appleton thought about it; that the board would do as it pleased about spending money for roads.

We don't think this represents the attitude of all the board members or even a majority of them but it does indicate the feeling that actuates some of the members, including those who do a good deal of talking at the board sessions. These men are actually hostile to the city which pays approximately 41% of the money they spend. It is an unhealthy situation, unhealthy for the county and unhealthy for the city.

The county board has approximately $685,000, including $100,000 bond issue, $173,000 from the 2-mill tax, $240,000 in the general fund and $170,000 state aid, available for highway purposes next year. Approximately $415,000 of this amount is to be raised by direct taxation, of which Appleton will contribute approximately 41% or nearly $170,000. Only $20,000 of this huge sum was to be spent in Appleton, and now there is a threat that Appleton city officials have a right to demand an accounting from those who spend them? Most decidedly there is not. Appleton city officials have a right to demand that the county board comply with the law and they would be derelict in the performance of their duty if they did not demand justice for Appleton taxpayers.

The fact is that county expenditures have increased beyond all bounds of reason and are placing an unwarranted burden on the taxpayers. The county demands so much money that municipalities cannot raise enough to carry on a necessary improvements and keep the tax levy within legal bounds. It is time someone has called a halt to county expenditures and Appleton city officials are deserving of commendation, not censure, for their actions. The only persons who will condemn them are those who are spending this money or who are benefiting from it.

PENNIES FOR HEALTH

Twenty years ago the death rate in Wisconsin from tuberculosis was 107.7 per 100,000 population and 2900 persons died each year. Today, the death rate has fallen to 61.1 per 100,000 and 1,736 people died last year. These figures show graphically the progress that has been made in the fight against tuberculosis; they also bring home the seriousness of this disease and the toll of life it still takes each year.

There was no organized defense against tuberculosis until the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association entered the field in 1908. Since that time the war against this disease has been relentless, and marked progress has been made, not only in treatment but in prevention. The mainspring of this valiant fight has been, and still is, the little seals sold at Christmas time. Thousands of these seals are distributed throughout the state each year to be sold to raise money for the next year's war on tuberculosis. On the amount of money raised depends the vigor with which the battle will be carried on. If the proceeds are small the campaign against the "t. b." germ will be weak; if the proceeds are large, the fight will be in proportion.

The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association during 1925 examined 15,709 persons at 332 free clinics in 293 communities in this state. Of these examined, 2,060 were found to have tuberculosis and virtually everyone of them sent to sanatoriums for treatment. Lost of these victims will get well because their cases were caught in the early stages: had not been for the association's free clinics there is no doubt that many of these infected would never have gone to sanatorium.

In addition to the chest clinics, the association conducts open air schools and nutrition clinics for children susceptible or exposed to the disease. Furthermore, by the use of newspaper space, letters, posters and billboards, has educated the public to a point where now, if a person becomes infected, he is immediately sent to a sanatorium, where he is assured of competent treatment. Fifteen or sixteen years ago it was almost an impossibility to get a person to enter a tuberculosis sanatorium. Now the sanatoriums are inadequate to take care of the patients. All in all the work of the W. A. T. A. has been most valuable, not only for the lives it has saved in the past, but for the lives it will save in the future.

If the residents of Appleton appreciate this humanitarian work, they can show their gratitude by purchasing the Christmas seals now being sold by the Appleton Woman's club. These seals are messengers of science, and money given for this cause will return large dividends in good health and the knowledge that a worthy cause has been aided.

THE SOLICITOUS STRANGER

I am a glibbie and trusting man.
Too much at times I readily believe.
It has been so since first my life began.
I cannot bear to see another grieve.
For words of praise and flattery I fall,
I like molasses better far than fail.

Yet trusting as I am, I draw the line
On one high-priest gossamer who comes in
And tells me all the virtues which are mine.
I think the stuff he uses much too thin.
I know he has a proposition which
In just a few short months will make me rich.

I know big men are sitting up at night
Planning my welfare and my future peace.
They read the daily verses that I write
And would my little bank account increase.
They're worrying about me, Oh, 'tis sweet
Such glorious solicitude to meet!

Though glibbie I am, I rise to say
This perfect stranger's flattery I shun.
There's one temptation I can put away.
I know that such a thing is never done.
However kind the stranger's heart may be,
His interests in my money, not in me.

THE ART OF SCIENTIFIC NEGLECT

In the late agony of a political campaign loyalty to his party or gratitude to the machine or some such influence caused a former judge, governor, cabinet secretary to take the stump in behalf of languishing candidates. This eminent man, once indeed a statesman, appealed to the voters thus: Our opponents' candidate for governor is an admirable man, but he has been governor now for several terms and I believe it would be just as well to have a change. Our opponents' candidate for the senate is almost a novice, having had only short experience in the legislature, our candidate for the senate has been senator for several years, and it would be unwise for us now to waste all this valuable experience by failing to return him at the coming election.

Thus politics palsies men. It is a wonder the people of an enlightened state take such hokum seriously. In a street brawl a lone policeman unable to disperse a mob of rioters many of whom were drunk, finally drew his stick and tapped a particularly obstreperous fellow on the head, disposing of him in a neat and workmanlike manner, and incidentally intimidating the rest of the mob until the arrival of police reserves. A physician who happened along witnessed the episode, and examined the man the policeman had subdued. The man had a scalp cut. Later some of the mob with political pull brought charges against the policeman for brutality and some such crime, and the physician who witnessed the affair testified in the policeman's behalf that reasonable and proper force had been used and that the policeman deserved credit for his whole management of the trouble. The attorney prosecuting charge against the policeman showed the jury by the physician's testimony that (a) the physician had seen the victim lying on the street bleeding from the wound in the head and suffering from shock (the attorney omitted mentioning that the man was at least in part responsible for the fellow's daze); and yet (b) this cold-headed physician administered no restorative and made no attempt to treat the unfortunate's wound.

And you know juries! The wound required a stitch or maybe a half dozen stitches. That is about the only way a cut in the scalp can be closed. It would have been a dangerous thing to attempt to sew up the wound there in the filthy street even were the necessary emergency materials at hand. The bleeding from the cut was inconsequential, as it is from most scalp wounds. Therefore the physician did as he would be done by if his own scalp were cut open in a public street. He let it alone. He gave it scientific neglect. Much safer for the victim to be sewed up after he arrived at the police station, where reasonably aseptic precautions could be taken.

But this is a scientific, professional matter and the laity can't quite grasp its significance. The laity is much like the jury in the case described. A doctor is often tempted to thrust behind him the better scientific or professional impulse and conduct himself as he feels the public or the laity or his patients prefer, just as the former governor-judge-secretary did in the lamentable political campaign.

The popular conception of "antiseptic treatment" of wounds is an adaptation of the medical or surgical principles of a general surgeon. Probably it will require another 20 or 30 years to make the laity understand that antiseptics are practically passe and that this is the aseptic era. Aseptic means without germs—keeping the wound free from germs. It is a much more effective and humane practice than vainly trying to kill germs after we've let 'em in.

Glorified Sour Milk

Would you pass your opinion of acidophilus milk?
(C. C.)

Answer.—In my opinion ordinary sour milk or buttermilk gives one everything any laboratory or artificial preparation can give.
Less Training the Better
Just how many years of training must one have in order to become an optimist? (Miss G. E.)

Answer.—On the contrary, I should say. But you probably mean to become an optimist. I do not know how long that takes—I think some states now provide minimum requirements. To become an occultist one must first complete the regular medical course and then pursue such special study as he feels he needs to fit him to deal with eye troubles.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Dec. 17, 1901

The cheesemaking season in Outagamie-co closed a month earlier than that of the preceding one. This was due to the cost of feed which was at high water mark at that time.
Many dangerous places were still found on the slippery sidewalks on College-ave. Several merchants had sprinkled sawdust to prevent accidents.
The Wisconsin Telephone Co. reported a net gain of 295 subscribers in November making a total number of 24,401 subscribers.

W. L. Lyons was engaged in the organizing of several bowling teams to hold tournaments after the New Year. Thirty or forty bowlers were to be assigned to positions on the different teams by drawing numbers and the selection of an Appleton team was to be made from the best players.

The forty-ninth annual meeting of the Wisconsin Teachers association was to be held in Milwaukee Dec. 26 to 28. Among those who were to read papers were Prof. R. W. Pringle, Prof. Greverus and Miss Ruth Marshall. Two candidates were in the field for presidency, one of whom was Charles Mathie of Wausau, formerly of Appleton.

TEN YEARS AGO

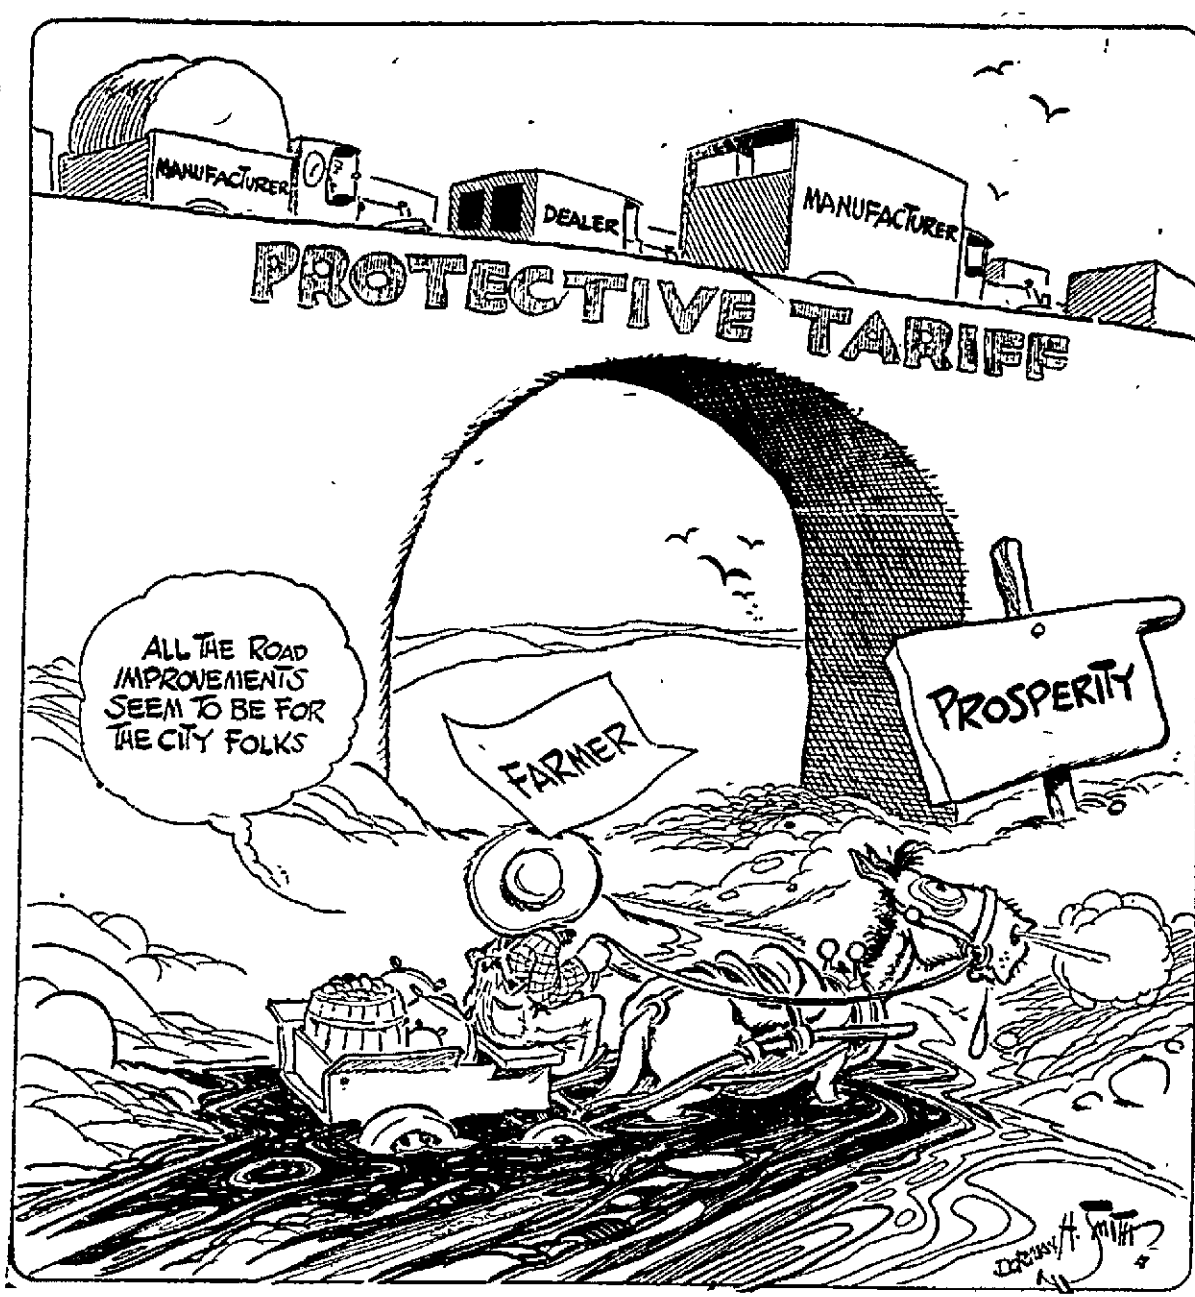

Tuesday, Dec. 12, 1916

George Miller, 1908 Front-st, pioneer citizen and lumberman of Appleton and one of the best known men in Outagamie-co, died at 5 o'clock this morning at the Presbyterian hospital at Chicago.
The Post-Crescent has issued an extra to inform the Appleton people that Germany had made an appeal for peace. A note outlining on what grounds Germany was willing to consider peace negotiations was to be read before the German Reichstag that day. In the note the four central allied powers proposed to enter into peace negotiations. The proposition which they brought according to these beliefs were appropriate for the establishment of lasting peace.

At the meeting of Pythian Sisters the previous evening the following officers were elected: Mrs. R. G. Manser, most excellent chief; Mrs. Dudley Pierce, excellent senior; Mrs. Lee Thompson, manager; Mrs. A. Wettersel, mistress of records and correspondence; Mrs. Harry Lee, excellent junior; Mrs. Henry Schiel, protector; Mrs. Ewen, guard.
The marriage of Miss Mabel Junge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Junge, Onondaga, to Edgar E. Sixth took place that evening at the Zion Lutheran parsonage.

Mrs. Joseph Jones, Durkeest, entertained at a bridge party the previous evening. Mrs. Mildred O'Keefe won the prize.
Miss Harry Kessler entertained the Bachelor Males and their friends at a dinner at 6 o'clock the previous evening in honor of Miss Freda Groeseler of Peshtigo.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

THE LURE OF THE STORY

For many years solemn people have been bewailing the fact that the average person devours ten books of fiction to one "serious" book and for just as many years the average person who the solemn individual wishes to improve has continued to ignore the complaint and has continued to read fiction. In which he has frequently shown his real wisdom, because some of the best minds of all time have never the best there was in them to fiction.

But of recent years the people who wished to interest the average reader in things other than fiction have stopped bewailing the fact of the disparity between the consumption of fiction and "serious" books and have adopted the lure of the story themselves to attract readers from among the fiction devotees.

ADOPTED STORY LURE

And results have shown that an ounce of that sort of literary diplomacy is worth several tons of mere complaints. As long as the "serious" writers and their advocates merely scolded the fiction readers thumbed their noses at them and were 100 per cent consistent in ignoring the solemn and learned "serious" books that their authors thought it was their duty to read. But no sooner has the new diplomacy been put into effect when certain of these "serious" books seem like the latest thriller and the people call for more.

Have you noticed how often the word "story" is used in the titles of non-fiction volumes during recent years? "The Story of Philosophy," by Will Durant, is good example. Imagine a writer 25 or 50 years ago who wished describe the different systems of philosophy that have obtained a hearing throughout the centuries from Plato to Santayana calling it a "story." He would have felt that the term was a desecration. In the past such a writer was more likely to call his work something like this, "A complete Survey of the Various Systems of Philosophy Since Plato." And then he wondered why the average reader did not buy his book by the carload or why he yawned when he saw the title in print.

Today the same type of writer calls his book "The Story of Philosophy" or "The Story of Aesthetics" or "The Story of Human Thought" or the "story" of anything else and the readers flock to him in droves so that the publishers sometimes have difficulty keeping up with them. A few years ago Hendrik Willem Van Loon called his history of the world "The Story of Mankind" and it sold better than most of the successful novels. And that shortly before that time H. G. Wells had covered the same ground in a different way with his "outline of History."

Of course, the title is not the whole thing. There has been a change in attitude as well. The old-time held the attitude that the people were duty bound to read their stuff because it was important. They took the attitude of forcing it down people's throats. The kind of writer who tries to suggest the lure of the story in the title of his non-fiction volume, consciously or unconsciously, has the attitude that it is his business to make his stuff so interesting that it will be able to compete with fiction. Consciously or unconsciously he employs the arts of the story teller.

And this can be done and is often without a loss in scientific accuracy. "Creative Chemistry" proved that and a number of other books have proved it. The non-fiction writers are stealing the fictionist's thunder and they are getting better results than all the scolding that was indulged in by the solemn advocates of so-called "serious" books.

Washington, D. C.—(P)—In the city of Washington some 300 school boys are doing valiant work patrolling streets and street intersections near the elementary schools. Within a month the number will be more than doubled and this safety measure which was inaugurated in a small way about three years ago will be placed on a city-wide basis in the National Capital.

TITLES SUGGEST STORIES

Sometimes there are variations in the title and the word "story" is suggested and not stated. This was the case with Paul de Kruif's "Microbe Hunters." The old-time writer, covering the same ground, might have called his book, "A history of Bacteriology" and the general reader whom he was aiming at would have merely looked bored and picked up another volume. But "The Microbe Hunters" suggests a story even if it does not use the word.

Of course, the title is not the whole thing. There has been a change in attitude as well. The old-time held the attitude that the people were duty bound to read their stuff because it was important. They took the attitude of forcing it down people's throats. The kind of writer who tries to suggest the lure of the story in the title of his non-fiction volume, consciously or unconsciously, has the attitude that it is his business to make his stuff so interesting that it will be able to compete with fiction. ## See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — Impressions of the Manhattan week:

Mme. Schumann-Heink being acclaimed at the 50th anniversary of her first appearance upon the opera stage. . . . And all Carnegie Hall shouting its effection for the great singer whose heart has been as full-toned as some of her old Wagnerian roles. . . . Taking her bows hand in hand with Walter Damrosch, now one of the famous conductors and her friend in the early days in America.

All the music world knows her romantic story. . . . She was 13 when she stepped on the stage in Graz, Germany. . . . She had been attending a convent at Prague. . . . A nun happened to hear her singing and was astounded by its promise. . . . It was arranged that she should sing at the cathedral. . . . There came Mme. Le Claire, great French prima donna, for the Sunday mass. . . . Her trained ear caught the magic of the voice and the actress all but forgot her worship. . . . She begged the child Ernestine to study. . . . So the Schumann-Heinks moved to Graz, the home of the Le Claires. . . . After two years came the anticipated interview with the director of the Hof Opera in Vienna. . . .

The director looked at the child and held up his hands in protest. . . . "She never can hope to be a singer with such a face and such a clumsy personality," cried the director. "No, my friends—take her back to her sewing machine."

But the broken-hearted child did not go back to her sewing machine. . . . She appeared in Graz with great success. . . . Years later, her husband dead and with five little children to care for, and her income woefully small, she met the great Nordic, who urged her to go to America and, in 1893, she came. From $5 a performance she was soon a $150,000-a-year star attraction.

And America's kindness has never been forgotten for a moment. . . . She loves this land and its people as few do. . . . And she manages remarkably to stay young. . . .

"I am not old," she told me the other evening. "Think of Lil Lehmann Over 70 and still singing at the opera festivals. And Ann Bishop appearing at concerts when she was 90! No, I am not old."

George Gershwin, the "composer who took jazz and made a lady of her," playing five new "jazz preludes" for the first time in public. . . . And Mme. D'Alvarez the exotic South American who defends syncretism against all comers putting her Latin personality into our jazz music. . . . The amusement of the audience. . . .

Only a few years ago Gershwin was earning his bread in "tin-pan-alley," grinding out tunes for professional performers at a salary of $15 a week. . . . After his "Rhapsody in Blue" appeared he quickly bridged the gap between the "tin-pan-alley" and the "prophet of the 'super-jazz' era."

It all started because his mother was coaxed into the purchase of a piano by a slick backdoor salesman. . . . George was then 12. . . . He pecked away at it so much that his parents called in a 50-cent-an-hour teacher. . . . His idols were Jerome Kern and Irving Berlin. . . . He went under the tutelage of two noted pianists. . . . And in the last nine years has composed 22 musical comedies. . . . To say nothing of the fortune made thereby. . . .

What a further insignia of his office the school boy patrol also wears a white Sam Brown belt, supplied by the Three A's, when he is on duty at a street intersection or in front of his school. This feature of his outfit is not so much to make the boy feel his importance as it is to mark him out to people driving motor cars. It spots him for a motorist at a distance of a block or more, and makes him at once a warning and a reassurance.

The motorist knows instantly and in ample time to get his car under complete control, if he has been hitting it up a trifle fast, that there is a bunch of school children on the next corner, possibly about to essay the crossing. He is assured, however, that those youngsters are being "shepherded" by the lad with the Sam Brown belt, and that the youthful traffic cop will take care of his part of the work of safeguarding human lives if the motorist will only look after his end of it.

The motorist can be reasonably certain that no one of that group of children will make a sudden dart into the street, possibly to fall under a car that is moving almost as slowly as it can be operated, for not only is the school boy cop there to watch his juniors and guard against their doing anything of that sort, but the youngsters have had it impressed upon them by their teachers that they must never cross the street except at regular crossings, where they will find a patrol who is ready to take them across the danger zone in safety, and that they must always do exactly what the patrol tells them to do.

This lesson of obedience to the "officer" is regarded as a very important factor in minimizing traffic accidents in which school children are involved, and it is an interesting bit of child psychology that the youngsters are more inclined to obey carefully the boy patrol than they are to respond to the mandate of a regular policeman.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n
How would you like to have this queer-looking bird served up to you on a platter as part of a holiday feast?

Had you lived a couple of hundred years or so ago on the island of Mauritius or on Reunion, off the coast of Africa, you probably would have had an opportunity to feast on roast dodo, though unaccompanied by fine linen and china.

Almost perfect skeletons of this huge and unwieldy bird, an extremely modified pigeon, have been found in the swamps of Mauritius. It was incapable of flight and seems "to have had no means of self defense. Sailors clubbed the birds and stocked their ships for future feasting.

Centuries of easy living without dangers with which to contend produced a breed of birds utterly unable to take care of themselves. Like our own turkey gobblers they were good to eat and gradually as men and dogs preyed upon them more and more wild fowl found their easy delicious to eat and so raided their nests, they gradually declined in numbers and finally, about 1700, became extinct.

The history of this bird teaches us that it is better to be quick, alert and agile, although beset by dangers, than to grow, by reason of a life of luxury and security, soft and stupid even though blessed with good nature.

PRINCIPAL TELLS TEACHERS HOW TO SUPERVISE STUDY

Diagnosis of Pupil's Difficulty Is Nine-Tenths of Problem

Supervised study is nine-tenths diagnosis, according to Dr. M. H. Small, principal of the Wilson Junior high school, who has prepared an outline on the principles of the system for the teachers at the school. This will be presented and explained at a meeting of the faculty Monday afternoon.

"We all are teaching and demonstrating too much for the proportion of drill that is bringing intelligent, conscious action, in the case of the lower and less mature pupils," the principal believes. "Under supervision, study is 'finding the pupil, gripping his need, helping him meet his need, giving him courage through real help, and teaching him and not the book.'"

The cardinal principles in supervising study he continued, are make the pupil connect the lesson with his experience, make him see what he learns will have a use for him, and keep him working every minute toward a definite goal. To attain these principles, Dr. Small would have the teacher give personal help to each member of the class several times during the study period. When convinced that a considerable group is stumbling over the same difficulty, she will bring those pupils together and teach until the difficulty disappears. "In the treatment of human ills, diagnosis

ODD DEED IS FOUND AMONG AGED PAPERS

One of the most peculiar deeds ever filed in the United States, according to Albert G. Koch, register of deeds, was brought to light in Newark, N. J. recently when a document indicating that fundamentalism may have been a matter of debate even so long ago as 1852 was discovered.

Mr. Koch found the incident in a publication devoted to the interests of registers.

The recorded instrument follows: "Whereas the said William Patterson is desirous that in case at the expiration of 999 years, or at the second coming of Christ, if the dead should again inhabit the earth, then the said William Patterson, if he be to require it shall have said property revert to him."

Apparently with some faith in the bible, Mr. Patterson nevertheless, wanted a reserved seat in the future. Eight years after the filing of the original title was cleared of any cloud created by the agreement.

Thorough preparation by the teacher before the meeting of the class is necessary before supervision will be adequate, it was said.

2,913 NEW CARS IN STATE IN NOVEMBER

Fords and Chevrolets Lead in Number of Sales Last Month

Fords and Chevrolets ran a close race for supremacy in Wisconsin during November according to the monthly report of Fred R. Zimmerman, with the Fords having a slight advantage both in the number of new passenger automobiles and new trucks registered. Of the 2,913 registrations Ford led with 896 passenger cars and 285 trucks and Chevrolet was second with 625 passenger cars and 121 trucks.

The same two makes of automobiles led in Outagamie-co, according to the report. There were 22 new Ford passenger cars registered and four new Ford trucks. Twelve Chevrolet passenger autos were sold and one Chevrolet truck. Only five new trucks were registered.

Of 64 cars sold in Outagamie-co during November, 22 were Fords, 12 Chevrolets, 3 Buicks, 6 Hudsons and 6 Overlands and the remaining eleven were scattered among various other makes.

Other makes which were in the lead in Wisconsin were Buick with 253, Essex with 145, Overland, 121, Nash, 117. Of the 70 counties in Wisconsin, Ford led in the sales in 51 counties, Chevrolet led in 13 counties and the two makes were tied in the other six.

The Bank of England possesses its own water supply, and the bullion department is submerged every night in several feet of water.

Look Before You Buy Must Apply To Almost Anything

One drop—$100.00; Ten drops—$1,000.00. Pretty expensive for water. That new high price was reported this week by the health committee of the State Medical society as being the price paid by a Waukesha county resident for ten drops of "medicine" to cure two cataracts of the eyes which never existed.

"The warning, look before you buy, applies to service for your bodily ailments as well as to second hand automobiles," declared the committee.

"In the instance cited, two 'city slickers' imposed upon a bedridden man this fall convincing him first that he had cataracts of the eye, that they imperiled his very life, and finally that they had a specially prepared medicine that would avoid an operation. After giving the two treatments of five drops each, they collected $1,000 and proceeded to leave for parts unknown leaving behind them only a receipt.

"From time to time such cases as these are reported to the society in hopes that the money may be recovered. Only in rare instances can anything be done.

"Frequently a greater loss than money is incurred where the sick are encouraged by false or misleading claims to pursue a will-o-the-wisp until the time has passed when adequate scientific treatment can do its greatest good. This is frequently the case with advertised 'cancer cures' and like 'cures'.

"Your own family physician, a member of his county medical society,

LAME DUCKS LIVE LONGER, DECLARES DEFEATED SENATOR

Little Consideration Shown for Senate Members, Say Harrel of Oklahoma

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
—Washington—Lame ducks may limp, but they'll live longer. This is the consolation held out to senators defeated in the last election, by John W. Harrel of Oklahoma, one of that rather imposing group of eleven Republicans whose senate tenures end for a few years at least with the windup of the present short session in March. The nation may kill its presidents with overwork, but it is not a bit more considerate of its senators, according to Senator Harrel, who has been a political freak by virtue of being the first Republican elected by Oklahoma to the upper house within the oldest inhabitant's memory. "In some respects, it's worse on a senator than on a president," said Harrel. "A senator's office door must be open every hour of the day. He must see virtually everyone who wants to see him. The president is protected from this indiscriminate visiting list."

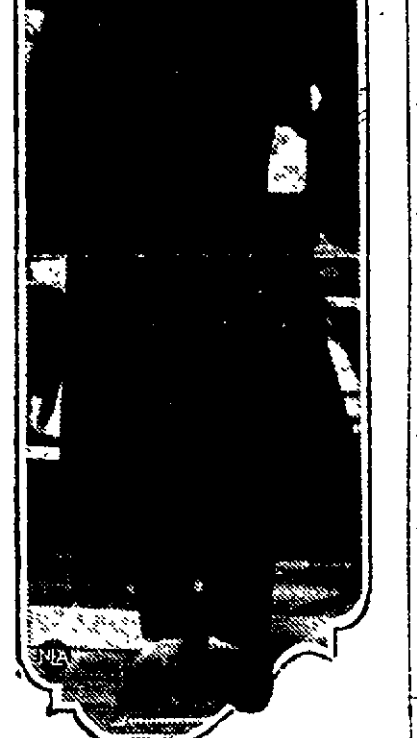

The strain of the senate explains why so many senators die, in Harrel's opinion. He cites Cummings of Iowa and the elder La Follette as examples. TWO KINDS OF SPECIES But there are two kinds of the species and he isn't sure which has a majority. Some senators conscientiously abstain from doing any of every demand of their constituents and work late at night following the intricacies of legislation and plunging into important research. The others pay attention only to the big issues, seeking the limelight and the greatest possible prestige with the least work and depending on their wits and publicity to tide them over.

DETAIL MEN LIMITED "My experience is that not more than one or two good detail men come to congress from a single state," Harrel reflected. "And the brunt of the detail work is thrust upon them as their constituents begin to identify them. A man has a full job out for him in attending to matters of legislation before the senate. But when his constituents begin to pile the work upon him the senatorship becomes the job of two or three more men."

"The man of democratic nature, easily approachable, gets the worst of it. The human iceberg sort of wards them off, or he may be agile at escaping out of the backdoor. "After a man reaches the senate his work gains bulk like a rolling snowball as he gains responsible positions on committees. It doesn't fall so hard, of course, on minority members—except for ranking committee members."

Sometimes Harrel gets as many as 300 constituent letters in a day. PHILOSOPHER IN DEFEAT Senator Harrel takes his defeat philosophically and hopes the rest of the lame ducks will feel the same way. The others, lamed by primaries or the election, are Senators Lenroot, McKinley, Pepper, Standfield, Butler, Wadsworth, Iveller, Cameron, Williams and Ernst. Some of them are thought to be rather crestfallen, but—"I haven't lost a wink of sleep over it," Harrel concluded emphatically. "Any if we will live longer if we're not here."

ELOPE

Margaret Hooper, 22, of Battle Creek, Mich., was very fond of her girl chum. And she found that the girl chum had an awfully nice father. So the other day she and the chum's father, Dr. Robert V. Gallagher, 60, eloped to a neighboring city and were married. They're honeymooning now. The bride is the daughter of Congressman Joseph L. Hooper.

and on Wednesday and Thursday Universal's laughing hit, "Oh Baby" will be shown, with the dwarf of Lon Chaney's "Unholy Three" in the title role, assisted by Midge Kennedy and Creighton Hale.

FIREMEN'S HEROISM IS EULOGIZED ON SCREEN

It is another Columbia production, entitled "The False Alarm" at the Bijou today and Wednesday. It is frank melodrama—a fire picture—in which there is all sorts of daring do and much villainy, to say nothing of the many thrilling scenes showing actual conflagration and fire-fighters.

at work. In these five scenes there is a thrill and a thrill that holds everyone—a primitive something that reveals in raging and destroying flames.

"The False Alarm" is a good example of the successful accomplishment in pleasing all of the people. Besides it thrills and sheer melodrama, it has plenty of heart interest, a four-cornered love affair that snarls itself up but untangles blissfully and partly tragically in the end.

The cast of players is another pleasing feature. Mary Carr, Ralph Lewis and Dorothy Revier head it. Other well known supporting players are Johnnie Haron, Priscilla Bonner, George O'Hara and William Franey. It's good entertainment—for young and old alike.

FLEET CORPORATION IS NOT EFFICIENT, CHARGE

Washington, D. C., — (P) — Inefficiency in administration of the fleet corporation, due to frequent changes in the chairmanship, is one reason private interest can operate merchant lines at a profit while the government operates at a loss, Vice-Chairman Plummer of the shipping board testified Monday before a senate investigating committee.

The witness cited the recent removal of Captain Elmer E. Crowley as chairman, asserting he knew of no reason for the action, and Admiral Benson, another board member, said he had no knowledge of a reason for removal of Crowley.

ORGANIZE INDUSTRIAL BOWLING LEAGUE AT Y. M. C. A.

New Six-Team Circuit Starts Ten-Week Card With Games On Jan. 4

Four Paper Mills, Schlafers and Scolding Locks Join Pin Loop

That ever popular winter sport, bowling which seemed to have taken in every corner of Appleton already this winter with the many more new leagues composed of more teams, and the independent squads than last year, was given another boost this week. Still another league was formed with the completion of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial pin loop, though skeptics had said that every team in the city was enrolled in a loop already this winter. The new loop consists of six squads, the Interlake Pulp and Paper Co., the Fox River Paper Co., the Wisconsin Tissue Mill of the Thimpany Paper Co., Schlafers Hardware Co., Scolding Locks Hardware Co., and the Riverside Pulp and Paper Co. The teams will roll three evenings a week, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, on the association alleys, giving each squad one match a week. Each squad will meet every two weeks in a ten-week schedule. The schedule will start on Tuesday evening, Jan. 4 with the Interlake and Fox River teams clashing, and will end on Friday, March 11 in a match between the Tissue mill and Scolding Locks men. Games will start at 7:30.

Games will be forfeited if teams are not ready to play by 7:45. Any bowler coming in up to the fifth frame can make up his lost time. After that the game must be bowled as a blind. An entry fee will be paid by each team for forfeit in case it does not complete its schedule. The fee will be returned at the end of the season if the team plays out its card.

Each team must have five men for its team, but those need not be the same five men each time. A man must be employed by a firm for at least two weeks before he is eligible to bowl with the company team. Two blinds can be used by a team when necessary with a score of 125 for each blind. A. P. Jensen, "Y" physical director, must be notified of the necessity of postponing a game by the noon of the day the game is scheduled to protect the other team. Failure to do this means a forfeit.

Prizes will be awarded to the man with the highest score and the man with the highest average when the season closes. Men must bowl 3/4 of all games scheduled to qualify for the latter prize. Percentage of games won and lost will decide the team winner.

The schedule:
Jan. 4-Feb. 8—Interlake vs Fox River;
Jan. 6-Feb. 10—Schlafers vs Tissue Mill;
Jan. 7-Feb. 11—Scolding Locks vs Riverside;

Latest Ring Sensation Was Rickard's Neighbor

BY JOE WILLIAMS
New York—Tex Rickard, the promoter, sat in his office in Madison Square Garden the other morning dictating the sport pages of the metropolitan dailies.

With a long, black cigar screw into his teeth and his eyes scanning the endless columns of type with a quiet, fixed interest, the promoter read an account of what the boys call a fluster up that had occurred the night before out in Cleveland.

An unknown 133-pounder by the name of Billy Wallace had knocked out Louis "Kid" Kaplan, former featherweight champion of the world, in five rounds.

"Funny how these kids you never heard of come along every once in a while and knock off the stars," droned Rickard, not without a slight trace of annoyance, because he had been figuring on sending Kaplan against Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion, in indoor battle during the winter.

Wallace couldn't be an unknown to Rickard of all persons, for he had pens that Wallace was born right next door to Rickard up in the ice country twenty-three years ago.

This was early in the present century, when Rickard was living at Dawson, Alaska, during the gold rush. In those days he was a member of a picturesque community of prospectors, merchants, gamblers, soldiers of fortune and plain, unvarnished, nomadic bums.

Rickard and his first wife lived in a little house not less than a block's throw from what passed as the heart of Dawson's commercial and speculative center.

TACKLE IS ELECTED ORANGE LEADER FOR 3RD STRAIGHT YEAR

Appleton high school's ability to produce great tackles on its football teams almost yearly is borne out by the fact that the last three captains of Orange grid squads have starred at that position. When Reuben "Rube" Getschow, assumes the leadership of the Orange-and-Shieldsmen next fall, he will be the third tackle to be honored by his mates in three years, records show.

Edward Steenis, husky leader of the 1925 squad starred at that job for two years and ended his high school career by alternating at tackle and fullback because his weight, speed and fight were needed behind the line. Norbert Pfefferle, 1926 leader, played two years at end, but this year he was shifted to tackle to meet the call of necessity and he filled the new job even better than a wing position. Getschow, 1927 leader, earned a tackle berth as a green player, weighing only 135 pounds, last year and this season was picked on several all-conference first and second squads.

Not only was the Orange captain a tackle this year, but the other local's Lawrence crew, was lead by a tackle, Marvin Counsell of Marshfield, Midwest tackle for two years. In the race for the 1927 Blue captaincy, Ott, a tackle, and Bloomer, star quarterback, are the favorites.

SCHLAFERS IN RETURN GAME WITH CORNERSMEN

Bent on gaining revenge for a defeat in the first game of the season, the Schlafers Hardware Co. basketball team will invade Twelve Corners Wednesday evening to battle with Bill Melitz Valley Queen basketballers. The Schlafers men have been practicing hard since the opener for the return game and are in good condition for a real battle.

The Corners boys had a good workout Sunday evening after scheduling a last-minute game with the Black Creek squad, beating that team, 38-0. The score at the half was 18-0. A tight defense held the invaders scoreless while the shooting eyes of the home squad was in fine trim.

New York—(AP)—Maxey Rosenbloom, New York defeated K. O. Phil Kaplan, New York (10).

Alf Mancini and Farmer Joe Cooper, Indiana, drew 10.

Babe Herman, New York, beat Eddie Anderson, Wyoming 10.

Teddy Baldock, England, won a technical knockout over Joe Clifford, New York (2).

Jack Bernstein, Yonkers, N. Y., defeated Ray Miller, Chicago, (12).

Mickey O'Donnell, San Francisco, and Willie Lavin, Buffalo, drew (6).

Trenton, N. J.—Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus, beat Jimmy Reed, Columbia, Ohio, (10).

Buffalo, N. Y.—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo, beat Mike Wallace, Cleveland, (10).

Milwaukee—(AP)—Marquette university's 1927 football team will be headed by Joseph Leary of Janesville, full back, who Monday night was elected captain at the annual Marquette football banquet. Varsity letters were awarded to twenty, while twenty-three freshmen received numerals. Leary is a junior.

HIGHWAY EXPERT ADVOCATES SNOW PLOWS, FENCES

Highspeed Automobile Trucks Are Best to Clean Roads, He Says

Madison—(AP)—Snow fences and highspeed automobile trucks equipped with snow plows are advocated by J. A. Stransky, assistant engineer of Highway Division No. 2, as the most practical means of keeping Wisconsin highways open during the winter.

"Every type of snowplow has its drawbacks," he said. "Light equipment cannot overcome heavy drifts. Heavy equipment moves slowly from drift to drift, the places in which it is most needed.

"The mere fact that a road has been opened does not insure its remaining so if nothing has been done to prevent drifts from forming. It must be conceded that it is not the actual snow-fall, but drifting, which is the chief cause of our difficulty. We have seen where the proper erection of snow fences will greatly minimize drifting if not prevent it entirely.

"We have seen that moldboard or light 'V' plows on high speed trucks can take care of snow from twelve to eighteen inches in depth.

"We have therefore come to the conclusion that efforts in solving the snow problem should be confined primarily to the prevention of drifting and to supplement these with plows on high-speed trucks to remove whatever snow does accumulate on the highways. There is no doubt but that some heavy equipment may be advisable to take care of unusual cases, but we believe that concentration on snow prevention will do more than anything else to solve the snow problem.

"After all, the snow problem does not rest so much upon the question of snow removal but rather on prevention of drifts, and observations and studies made during the past seven winters bear out the contention that concentration on drift prevention rather than on snow removal should be practiced.

"It must be borne in mind that any obstacle which decreases wind velocity will cause drifting. With this in mind, drift prevention can be accomplished most economically in three major ways. First, by proper road construction where cuts and fills are so designed as to afford a minimum obstruction to snow carrying winds. When this is done, the velocity of the wind is not diminished and the snow is not deposited. This method has been given considerable study by the construction department and as a result all grades are now being laid with a view toward snow prevention. Secondly, by cleaning up the roadsides and removing brush and such other obstacles which act as wind breaks. They decrease the velocity of the wind and because of their proximity deposit the snow on the roadbed. This method of snow prevention is being practiced by the patrolmen who clean up the roadsides before the end of the maintenance season. Thirdly, by the planting of hedges or the erection of snow fences. These places a sufficient distance back from the right of way so as to break the velocity of the wind and cause the snow to be deposited before it can be carried on to the roadbed.

"In highly developed country the planting of hedges is impractical and so this method of prevention is confined almost entirely to snow fence. So widespread has the use of snow fence become during the past two years that if carried on in the future at the same rate it will be but a comparatively short time before our principal highways will be lined with such fence at all points where heavy drifting occurs."

INVITE TEACHERS TO HEAR CHICAGO SPEAKER

William L. McAndrews, superintendent of schools in Chicago, will speak at a meeting of Green Bay teachers in that city at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, and Appleton teachers have been invited to attend the lecture. The subject of his talk has not been announced.

Body Weight Is The Barometer Of Your Health.

If a grown person whose weight is correct eats the proper kind and amount of food there will be little or no variation in weight. Abnormal weight therefore is the sign of improper eating or living.

When overweight or underweight warns you of danger there is a guide to correct your weight and improve your general health.

Our Washington Information Bureau offers a new booklet of means for reducing or increasing weight, exercises for reducing, and other valuable information on the subject of weight control.

A copy will be sent to you on receipt of six cents in stamps to cover cost and return postage.

I enclose herewith SIX CENTS in stamps for a copy of the booklet, "WEIGHT CONTROL."

German "Sea Devil" Comes To Visit His Erstwhile "Friendly Enemies"

Count Felix von Luckner, the Countess and the "Vaterland."

BY MARIAN HALE

New York—Peter Pan—it may interest an admiring world to discover—has sailed into New York harbor on a four-masted yacht, bearing the title of count and wearing 21 war decorations for valor.

Peter Pan is certainly must be, the boy who never grew up.

But for a week-day world he goes by the name of Count Felix von Luckner.

During the war he was a plume of the type boys like to imagine themselves, sailing his "Seeadler," around the world, winning the fearsome name of "Seadevil," sinking 13 merchant vessels in two months—but never shedding a drop of blood and never failing to convert his enemies into personal friends.

ONLY A LARKING BOY

Now that the war is over, he refuses still to be anything but a boy out for a lark. His chosen work is to show the world what desirable goods Germany can manufacture. In other words, he is a traveling salesman for his country. But he is a brisk and borsome business man. Well, his idea was to get this yacht, the "Vaterland," take his beautiful countess and a jolly crew of which all but one are barons and that one a prince, and venture out to the winds of the world. Incidentally, his ship is a floating exposition of attractive merchandise and the best sort of advertisement.

He is not exhibiting in the United States, but just called by to visit friends, who formerly were his prisoners of war.

The first affectionate memento arrived in the form of three barrels of soap from the factory of one Captain von Louis Halden, who calls his captivity on the ravine the pleasantest adventure of his life.

SIX INSURED GUESTS

The next two to pay respects were Edward Bhugley, radio operator, and Captain John Slade, formerly of an American merchant vessel which Count Felix sent to the bottom.

At one time there were 600 guests by necessity aboard the "Seeadler," to say nothing of 12 cats, 10 dogs, and parrots unnumbered, all rescued from the captured vessels. For Von Luckner loves life too well himself to let an animal die.

The captures were made by fitting an extension of tin cans on the mouth of the one old cannon the "Seeadler" boasted. And each time the crew of the captured vessel came aboard, the rest of the prisoners stood around to enjoy their amazement at sight of the sugar-cane gun which had scared them into surrender without a shot.

The arrival of new prisoners was always the excuse for a big dance in the cabin, with wines from every country represented by the prize ships, and delicacies from all their galleys.

When the "Seeadler" got too crowded, Count Felix reluctantly sent his guests ashore in the latest ship captured and strated to accumulate a new house party.

In the South Sea Islands, the Seadevil anchored to give his men a vacation. And there a tidal wave seized the "Seeadler" and crushed it on the rocks.

"So we made tents of her sails and set up the first German colony on a French Island," says Von Luckner. "Later, when we had lived Robinson Crusoe lives for some weeks, five of us set out in an open boat to find a new ship."

After many exploits, Count Von was captured by a British officer and made a prisoner of war in New Zealand. There, one of his former prisoners found him, and by interesting the newspapers, made the count a public, as "Australia's only war prisoner and the most hospitable raider on the seas."

From this prison, the count escaped by a ruse which toppled his guard onto the ocean and secured the motor boat and the sword of the very officer who had captured him. The Seadevil picked up the guard from the water and made off with him, to swoop upon another merchant vessel and capture it by sheer bluff.

The war ended, and Count Felix found his adventures cut short. Germany was in dire want and in helpless political confusion.

And so he set out on a trip through hamlet and city, appealing to the fatherland. And wherever he found a boy who loved tales of the Jolly Roger and dirks and unknown lands, he took that boy with him for a new cruise around the world, in search of lands as strange as Treasure Island.

With copper marks given by the school children of Germany, he fitted up the "Vaterland," took aboard an exhibit of German factories, and assembled his crew.

There is no caste system aboard the "Vaterland." Baron Siegfried von Oppeln peels potatoes and Aaron Arnd Rautenfeld swabs decks. And better potato peelers and deck swabbers and housekeepers never sailed, the count swears.

Each young nobleman has brought $50.00 for "potato money," in case the Vaterland commissary gets low.

FISH WHEN BROKE

But that is the least of the Seadevil's worries. "We make our way as we go," he explains. "We use what money we have, and we fish when that is gone. Perhaps we will find a desert island and set up house-keeping by our wits."

"Our cruise may last a year, or it may last three. So long as we are doing something for Germany, we'll be satisfied. We are out to show our wares in every country on three continents."

"I could never live on the land, and I could never stand by idle, while the politicians and intrigues scheme for power in Berlin, and the children starve."

WELFARE SPECIAL RAISES STANDARD OF STATE HEALTH

Health Board's Truck Has Visited Every County in Wisconsin

Madison—(AP)—Completion of a rural health tour on the Child Welfare Special is expected to result in improved health standards throughout the communities visited, according to a report of the state board of health.

Since 1922 the truck spent the season from April to November every year in traveling through rural districts of selected counties. Every county has now been visited, some of them twice. The work consists of physical examinations and advisory service for babies, preschool children and prenatal cases.

The 1926 tour included the following counties: Racine, Green Lake, Waushara, Brown, Kewaunee, Shawano, Taylor, Sawyer, Washburn, Douglas, Burnett, Polk, St. Croix, Eau Claire, Richland, Iowa and Dane.

In the final year the staff examined 1,406 infants, 3,191 children of preschool age, 93 prenatal cases, and 253 "special" cases, such as children of school age referred by the home physician. The season's total was 1,913.

The five year report just rendered to the state board shows a grand total of 23,579 examinations made, of which 55 per cent were infants, 60 per cent were preschool children, and the rest prenatal and special cases. The totals were as follows: infants, 8,653; preschool 14,188; special, 446; prenatal, 292.

In 516 towns visited during five years, 740 centers were held, with an average daily attendance of 31.3.

In the matter of physical findings, according to the compilations, 20 per cent of the infant and preschool group (22,741) were adjudged normal, meaning of normal weight for age and height, and free from physical defects, and 89 per cent were of normal weight, while 79 per cent were breastfed for a period of four or more months.

The advisory service given at these centers is expected to lead to permanent health habits and procedures which eventually are expected to show in stronger bodies and increased efficiency as those examined approach maturity.

The physician on the Special in the past three years was Dr. Sylvia Stuessy. During most of this year's tour the nurse attendant was Miss Ellen Raithe, R. N. Monroe, Walter Drews, Milwaukee, was mechanic for several reasons.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, teaching at Pendleton University, is admired by DR. PETER DORN, astronomer, professor, and ERIC WATERS, leader of the radical student faction.

DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN resents her interest in student affairs and her friendship for Eric, particularly after Eric is suspected of bootlegging.

MYRA ALDRICH is in love with Eric and jealous of Judith. Dean Brown's wife has sought relief from the dean's tyranny in a secret love affair, which Judith discovers. When "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown, Judith asks Eric to silence him.

Shea's body is found under his car in a creek and Eric arrested as a material witness because a letter addressed to him is found in Shea's pocket.

Dean Brown posts placards of the mammoth vicious rally to be held by EVANGELIST FORREST FOLEY.

Several days after Eric's arrest, Judith goes home, to find him sitting on the front steps, whistling.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVIII

Eric placed the absurd whistle at his mouth and blew a blast. Judith sat down weakly beside him on the steps.

He rose, pulling her to her feet. "Follow me down the street a little way. Let's go for a ride. Parked it down there to avoid drawing crowds to your front door. Everybody knows my car."

Judith went down the sidewalk with him and climbed into the little car. He drove through the town past the campus and out into the Granville road at law-breaking speed. When they were well into open country, he slowed down to a steady pace, and slouched in his seat, with one arm on the wheel.

"Now," he said, "tell me what you know about all this."

Judith stared at him. "I don't know anything. I don't even know what you're talking about."

Eric studied her face, only glancing away now and then to the road. They passed no vehicles.

"Then," he said, "if you can't explain it, I've lost my grip on sanity. The universe has turned into a madhouse."

Judith put her hand on his arm. "Just tell me what happened, as quickly as you can," she said. "I've waited long enough."

"Only this," he answered. "Mrs. Brown has ruined herself for me, in the eyes of at least two persons—in order to get me out of jail. She must be mad."

"What did she do?" asked Judith, bending forward.

"She came to the chief of police and the county attorney and told them the most prodigious lies. How anybody in the world could have believed them is beyond me."

"But they evidently did, for they released me on the strength of her story. And told the dean where to head in, too, without giving him any explanation. The old boy is raging. He had tasted blood, and he would have been satisfied with no less than the electric chair for me."

"Please start at the beginning," said Judith, "and tell the whole story."

"Very well," Eric answered. "This is what happened. You asked me where I had been on the day the murder was discovered. I had gone out after dark to scour the scene of the tragedy, to make sure that none of Shea's letters were left in the wreckage."

"But why?" interjected Judith. "What was in the letters?"

"I didn't know," said Eric, "but, knowing Shea, I thought there might be evidence in them against me—as a whisky buyer, or against the dean's wife or against you."

"I went out after dark with a flashlight and looked the wreck over. Of course the letters weren't there. When before you go," the chief continued, "I want a little talk with you."

"Of course I answered, amiably, all the time wondering who the deuce could have come to my rescue. 'Look here, young fellow,' said the chief, shaking a fat finger at me, 'let me give you some good advice. It's time for you to straighten up, and not go getting into any more disgraceful scrapes 'round this town. My advice to you from now on is to lay off the wine and women, and stick to song.'"

"Please elucidate, chief," I said. "As for wine, I plead guilty to the soft impeachment. But women—"

And there I made a Joseph-resisting-Potiphar's-wife gesture.

"But the old boor just laughed, throwing his head far back and shaking all over."

"Cut out the blinding, Waters," he admonished me. "I know the whole story, and your play-acting won't go down with me. What we're interested in now is your future behavior. The county attorney thinks it's safe to trust you, but I have my doubts. I told him I'd seen young devils of your sort before, many and many a time."

"Surely not, sir," I interrupted him. "I cannot be so common a species as that."

"The chief was raising the frankfurter luger to shake it at me again, when the door opened and the tobacco-smoking jailer appeared."

"He slouched across to the chief's desk and laid a white envelope on it. Then with one mighty shot at the spittoon, he turned and smiled insolently at me and slouched out again."

"For heaven's sake hurry," cried Judith. "I believe you are dragging this out on purpose, for the sake of dramatic effect. The jailer's tobacco means nothing to the story."

Eric desisted. "It means atmosphere, an atmosphere, in any drama, means everything. Only I wish this hadn't been garlic-flavored atmosphere."

He smiled at Judith's despairing face and took up the narrative again. "The chief didn't open the

SPECTOR TROPHY GOES TO GRADUATING CLASS

For the third successive year the class of 1937 was awarded the Spector trophy given to the class selling the greatest number of tickets for the school operetta, according to an announcement made at the general assembly meeting Monday afternoon.

William Lee, president of the class, accepted the trophy on behalf of the seniors. The numerals of the class will be engraved for the third time on the trophy. M. Spector presented the shield to the school two years ago.

Competition in the sale of tickets for "The Belle of Barcelona" given at Fischers Appleton theatre Dec. 6, was particularly close. H. H. Heile, principal, said, and due to the cooperation of the classes the operetta was a financial as well as a dramatic success this year. Sophomores sold 205 tickets; juniors, 207; and seniors, 223.

The junior class was awarded the class basketball tournament trophy for the second time in succession. This shield was made by Robert Grant of the Manual training department three years ago. The numerals of the winning class are engraved each year. Aloysius Gage, president of the class, accepted the trophy.

The meeting closed with the singing of a group of patriotic and popular songs led by Carl McKee, director of music at the school.

The sea covers three-quarters of the earth's surface but it does not provide proportionately for man's wants. Only about one-thirtieth of the world's inhabitants gain their livelihood directly from the sea.

Indications are that many of the rural schools of the county will not close for Christmas vacation until the Thursday or Friday before the holiday, it is reported by County Superintendent A. G. Meating. The vacation period selection rests almost entirely with the district boards and the teachers and many prefer to take the shorter vacation now and close school one week earlier in the spring, Mr. Meating said. In some instances days lost earlier in the year will be made up.

COST OF FILLING SILO 40 PER CENT OF ENSILAGE VALUE

WIDE VARIATION IS DUE TO INDIVIDUAL FARM CONDITIONS

State Now Has 110,000 Silos, Agricultural Experiment Report Shows

Madison—(AP)—Variations in the costs of filling silos and the types in common use throughout Wisconsin are obtained in a report by the agricultural experiment station at the University of Wisconsin.

"Wisconsin now has 110,000 silos," the report said. "The more intensive dairy sections of the state have from 60 to 32 silos for every 100 farms, while the whole state averages 34 silos for every 100 farms. There can be stored in these silos approximately 5,800,000 tons of dairy feed. If this feed is valued at $4.50 per ton it represents a total of $26,100,000 for feed for the dairy herd of the state.

"The cost of filling silos represents more than 40 per cent of the total costs of silage. A reduction of one cent in the filling costs or 25 per cent per ton, will amount to an annual saving of more than $2,000,000 to Wisconsin farmers for this one item alone."

VARIATIONS IN COSTS
"The variation in costs of filling silos ranged from $1.02 to $4.65 per ton, the average cost being $2.95 per ton. Approximately one-fourth of the 232 farms had costs greater than $2.50 per ton, while an equal number averaged less than $1.75 per ton. This wide variation in costs is due to such factors as size of silo, length of haul, size of crew, and labor and equipment used. The factors most directly responsible for variation in costs per ton are the silo and machinery costs. These two items consisting of silo, engine, engine cutter, corn binder and wagons constitute 68 cents, or 33 per cent of the average cost.

"There are six types of silos more or less commonly used in Wisconsin, and the type selected for a particular farm depends on the cost per ton for storing silage. The most commonly used type is the concrete silo. Nearly one-half of the farmers visited owned this type. The next in importance is the wood silo, which is found on approximately 30 per cent of the farms. The remaining 20 per cent is evenly divided between the clay brick, brick and stone types.

"It is interesting to note that the average capacities of the different types of silos vary greatly. The brick silos, for example, have an average capacity of 130 tons, while the wood silos average but 80 tons. The average silo capacity in Wisconsin varies also. The average silo capacity for the wood silos is over 50 years for the concrete and wood silos.

PROVIDE CABBAGE SEED FOR GROWERS

Members of Appleton Cabbage Growers Association Supplied at Annual Meeting

Cabbage seed grown by the Appleton Cabbage Growers' association this year on the Pacific coast, was distributed to members of the association at the annual meeting last Tuesday. The aim of the association is to maintain a supply of the proper kind of seed from year to year.

Phil Bixby, route 1, Appleton, is president of the association, while Matt Schaefer, route 7, Appleton, is secretary and treasurer. About 150 members of the association were present at the meeting, and a large number of new members joined the organization at that time. C. L. Fluke of the college of agriculture, addressed the association on Control of Maggot Trouble in Cabbage Beds.

Shioketown and Black Creek have associations affiliated with the Appleton organization, and seed is also provided for them through the local association.

According to the United States department of agriculture report of Nov. 20, 26,000 cars of cabbage were produced this year, compared to 21,400 a year ago, about 20 per cent more.

The average price to the grower in Wisconsin for the season has been $3.45, while New York has averaged only $1.13 and Ohio $3.89. The report states "New York stock is still selling $5.00 a ton below Wisconsin cabbage."

A. F. KASSILKE HEADS GUERNSEY BREEDERS

A. F. Kassilke, route 7, Appleton, was elected president of the Fox River Valley Guernsey Breeders' association at the annual meeting held in Appleton last Wednesday. Other officers were: Emory Meltr, route 2, Appleton, vice president; Stanley Jamison, route 2, Appleton, secretary, and John Speers, Shioketown, treasurer.

The new directors are Sam Ruppel, Medina; Harry Leppa, Appleton; Charles Waussau, Black Creek.

The association is contemplating putting on a Guernsey exhibit at some of the fairs next fall. Another meeting is to be called in the spring for this purpose. A resolution, requesting that blankets be removed from all exhibit cattle at the fairs in order that the public might see the exhibits, was also passed.

PEARS GROWN ON CAMPUS

MISS VIRGINIA OSWILL HOLDING A PRIZE PEAR

Danville, Calif.—Students of the Ramon Valley Union high school here are rejoicing over their award for growing one of the finest types of pears in California.

The pear, the Eastern Beurre, grown on the high school campus, and selected for a blue ribbon award at the Sacramento state fair.

The school is making so much of this award that it has requested the state fair board to give the school its trophies and has put aside a dozen of the largest fruit from the pear trees for future preservation.

The guardian of these trophies and models, at least for this year, is Miss Virginia Oswill, elected "pear queen" of the school.

Goose Trying To Beat Hen At Game Of Laying

BY W. F. WINSEY

Appleton—Mrs. Leo Hegner, route 3, is the owner of an erratic goose, the latest digression of which from the beaten paths in geosedom was the regular production of a perfect egg every other day during November and the days of the present month already past.

By breeding from exceptional life like Mrs. Hegner's geese and changing the environment, man with an eye to profit, has made freaks or monstrosities out of the native cow, horse, dog, chicken, duck and all other birds and animals that have yielded to his processes of domestication. Out of the wild cows that roamed in herds over the prairies, and that could barely support one calf for a month, he has brought forth an animal that is a veritable living butter or cheese factory, able to support four calves for nine months of the year. Out of the hen that laid eggs enough in the spring to hatch only one cover of chickens, man has produced the hen which lays eggs all summer and winter with a record of six to twelve dozen eggs for the year. By wise choice and careful breeding, animals and birds have improved and developed in a diversity of lines, the special line in each case depending upon the purpose.

Conscious of the changes that have been made in birds and animals and the increased profits that have come from these changes, neither Mrs. Hegner nor the writer can see any reason why by proper handling, geese that now only feed, honk and produce one setting of eggs a season, might not be induced to lay the greater part of the year.

Had it not been for the ridiculing of the idea by neighbors, Mrs. Hegner would have taken the first step in the production of a more profitable breed of geese than can be found in her vicinity by hatching the November eggs of her freak goose in an incubator.

BUTTER SHORTAGE ADVANCES PRICES

Cheese Trading Fair; Hog Market Fluctuates; Cattle Trading Also Uneven

Madison—(AP)—Shortage of supplies in the butter market brought about several fractional advances during the past week, a report of the state department of markets for the period said. Butter prices are three cents higher than the corresponding month last year, the report stated.

"Prices on top scores continued to increase," the report said. "Several fractional advances took place. This was due to the shortage of supplies rather than to an active demand. Buyers were finding difficulty in supplying full wants. Taking in consideration the limited supplies trading, though not active, was of fair volume. Medium and undergrades showed fair movement during the week and the situation on centralized car markets was decidedly more satisfactory than during recent weeks. Butter prices are three cents higher than last year at this time."

CHEESE TRADING FAIR

"Trading on the cheese markets was fair during the past week with the majority of buyers filling only immediate needs. The bulk of the movement consisted of small to medium-sized lots. Production continued to lag behind 1924 and 1925. According to reports no immediate increase in production is expected. Since butter continues to advance, the price relationship will prevent most factories, equipped for the making of both butter and cheese, from making cheese. Cheese prices are 1 1/2 cents higher than last year at this time."

"Frequent fluctuations featured the hog market during the past week. Yearlings gained 25 to 40 cents while hogs were liberal during the fore part of the week, decreasing considerably during the last few days. The net result of these fluctuations in receipts was a decrease of 10 to 15 cents as compared with the previous week. Hog prices are about 35 cents higher than last year at this time."

CATTLE TREND UNEVEN
"The cattle market exhibited a certain unevenness during the past week. Yearlings gained 25 to 40 cents while hogs were liberal during the fore part of the week, decreasing considerably during the last few days. The net result of these fluctuations in receipts was a decrease of 10 to 15 cents as compared with the previous week. Hog prices are about 35 cents higher than last year at this time."

"Sheep prices declined generally 50 to 75 cents as compared with the previous week. It is reported that corn belt feeders are encountering difficulty in financing their hanks. Sheep prices are about $1 lower than last year at this time."

INSTITUTE SPEAKER DISCUSSES BENEFIT OF FARMERS' COOPS

Cheese Federation Capable of Being Made Effective Force, Imig Says

In a speech delivered at the Farmers' Institute, in session on Tuesday at Wayside, C. H. Imig of Junction City, the conductor of the institute, traced the rapid growth of co-operative marketing by farmers in this country since its introduction a few years ago, explained how readily cheese yields to this kind of marketing and predicted a great expansion of the Wisconsin Cheese Federation's business in the future. Mr. Imig said in part:

"In his recent message to congress, President Coolidge says: 'The development of sound and strong co-operative associations is of fundamental importance to our agriculture. It is encouraging to note, therefore, that a vigorous and healthy growth in the co-operative movement is continuing. The President followed these general statements with these specific facts: 'Co-operative associations reporting to the department of agriculture at the end of 1925 had on their membership roster a total of 2,700,000 producers. Their total business in 1925 amounted approximately to $2,400,000,000 compared with $635,500,000 in 1915.'"

"I have made this rather lengthy quotation from President Coolidge's message for the benefit of people who have not come to the point where they believe in the co-operative marketing of farm crops by farmers."

LEADING COOPERATIVES
"It may be a surprise to many people to learn how long some of the leading co-operatives have been in business and the amount of business they are doing.

"The California Fruit Growers Exchange, 33 years old, does an annual business of $50,000,000. The Tillamook County Creamery association, 17 years old, does an amount of business equaling $2,000,000.

The Minnesota Co-operative Creamery association, 6 years old, does a business of $50,000,000 a year.

The Wisconsin Cheese Producers association, 12 years old, does a business of $6,000,000 a year.

"The Sun Maid Raisin Growers of California, 14 years old, does a business of $40,000,000 a year."

"The Wisconsin Cheese Producers' association is just what the name implies. It is a federation of Wisconsin cheese producers for the purpose of marketing their own product.

"The federation has been conspicuously successful in increasing the volume of its business from year to year and in gaining and maintaining the interest and confidence of Wisconsin cheese producers, the state department of markets and our Wisconsin college of agriculture economists.

DOORWAY TO COW'S STOMACH TO SHOW FOODS SHE EATS

State College, Pa.—(AP)—Scientists at the Pennsylvania State college agricultural experiment station have had a small doorway placed in the first and larger stomach of Penstate Homestead Jessie, a two-year-old purebred Holstein heifer, for the purpose of analyzing the food she eats.

Dr. S. I. Bechtel of the station staff, has proved that a cow's milk will contain vitamin B even when that necessary dietary substance is left out of all food she consumes. It is believed the cow has the power of using the bacteria in her rumen to manufacture vitamin B. Samples of Jessie's dinner will be taken through the doorway and vitamin B dissolved in alcohol and extracted, if present. The residue will be fed to rats. If the rats thrive like others that receive a vitamin B ration, Dr. Bechtel will be on the road to a solution of the problem.

The operation was simple and harmless and Jessie is still a contented cow. Local anesthetics were used. The rumen was sewed to the skin of the opening and when the two grow together the handy opening will be ready for use.

consin college of agriculture economists.

"The federation has several advantages that are worthy of note in considering its ultimate possibilities. It deals in a localized product. This is important. Of the 400,000,000 pounds of American cheese produced in the United States, 300,000,000 pounds are produced in Wisconsin.

READILY STORED

"Cheese lends itself readily to storage. A large amount can be stored in a small space and at a low cost. Cheese can be held six months for about one and one half cents per pound and when taken out of storage at the end of six months it is of better quality than when put in.

"The cheese federation is capable of being made a real effective force in marketing cheese and will be when it assembles nearly all of the American cheese produced in this state. When it does this, it can have something to say about the price that buyers shall pay for cheese.

"Farmers do not ask to be allowed to set an arbitrary price for their product but they should have something to say about what that price shall be and this they are not doing and cannot do when cheese is marketed through the private dealer system.

"The dealer pays Plymouth now and neither the cheese producer nor his representative has anything at all to say about what that price shall be.

"No industrial concern could exist if its product was put on the market every week to the highest bidder."

COW TESTING DATA ASSURES PROFITS FROM DAIRY HERD

Appleton Farmer Is Now Able to Determine Exact Value of Every Animal

Appleton—John Johann, route 7, is a firm believer in the efficacy of cow testing associations in the building up of paying dairy herds. "Years ago," said Mr. Johann, "if a cow gave a half of milk and did not overload her stomach to do so, she was considered a good enough animal to be kept for breeding and milking purposes, although she might be the lowest paying cow in the herd, and another cow, in the same herd, that gave less milk and consumed less feed was eliminated from the herd although she might have been the best paying cow in the herd. Quantity of milk saved worth less cows from the block and the while many valuable cows there, because they produced quality rather than quantity. Cow testing, besides showing the exact amount of feed consumed, the amount of milk and butterfat produced and the profit, teaches the owner to use the balanced ration. It also works up a healthy rivalry between the owners of the herds in the association."

Since joining the association, operating in his locality, Mr. Johann knows exactly the amount of profit each cow in his herd is giving him, the undesirable cows in his herd, the offspring of which cows to raise, the cows to discard, and how to fill vacancies in his herd from other herds. He has lately purchased a purebred Guernsey sire from the Oaks dairy farm near Shioketown. He is more interested in dairying than ever before. This increased interest shows itself in the intention of Mr. Johann, to buy a few purebred calves each year and in this way to gradually work up to a purebred herd.

HIGH PRODUCERS

Already Mr. Johann has a few of the highest producing cows in his vicinity. Among these is Roane, a grade Guernsey, three years old, that has been milking nearly nine months and is now producing 13 pounds of milk a day with a butterfat test of 6 per cent. The profit from this cow last month was $15.08. Earlier in her milking period, Roane produced 38 pounds of milk daily with a butterfat test of 4 per cent. Little Guernsey, a four year old cow, is now giving 25 pounds of milk daily with a butterfat test of 4.4. This cow has been milking since April. Her profits in November were $21.11. Rose, a grade Holstein cow, six year old, gives 42 pounds of milk daily and tests 3.6. The biggest milk flow of this cow came in early October and was 50 pounds daily. The profits of Rose for November were $30.42. Fern is a three year old, milking nearly nine months. She is now producing 15.03 pounds of milk daily. Her butterfat test is 5.3 and her profits for November were $16.48. Earlier in the season, Fern gave 36 pounds of milk daily and her butterfat test was 3.8. Mr. Johann is now milking eight cows but in the spring this number will be increased to twelve.

PIGS BEAT TON MARK
A litter, consisting of 14 grade Yorkshire pigs, owned by J. E. Scoltard, Jefferson county, Wisconsin, weighed exactly 3045 pounds when 180 days old.

Reports from Quebec, Canada, indicate that the province has a more abundant crop than last year. Garden products are not only more abundant but are of much better quality.

A Weeks' Trial Proved Dreco Was Just What This Local Man Needed

70 year old citizen had suffered for years with rheumatism and stomach troubles. Now feels fine.

"I hadn't taken the Dreco treatment more than a week before I felt much better and now since continuing on it for a while longer, I feel like a new made man," said Mr. Peter Klein in a recent talk with the Dreco man who is meeting the folks of this section at Schintz Bros. Drug Store. Mr. Klein who is 70 years old, is employed by the city as a bridge tender at Fox River and is known to hundreds.

"For several years," he continued, "I have been in a very rundown condition. I suffered greatly with indigestion, heartburn, gastritis, and shortness of breath. I had no appetite for even the finest meal and what I did eat distressed me greatly afterwards. I suffered actually with rheumatism in my joints, due no doubt, to my advanced age and the exposure caused by my work."

"Although nothing else had ever benefited me I noticed a big improvement in my condition after taking Dreco for only one week. So I continued on the treatment according to the Dreco man's directions and now I am entirely free of all the stomach distress and can eat my meals with keen enjoyment. My appetite is wonderful now. I still have a little touch of the rheumatism but not enough to worry me greatly and I'm sure that by finishing the complete Dreco treatment I will soon be entirely well. I can earnestly recommend to anyone who suffers from stomach troubles or rheumatism."

Dreco is made from the juices of twelve different herbs, roots, barks and leaves, which act directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder and the blood, and tends to relieve constipation, headaches, rheumatism, catarrh, biliousness, dizzy spells, heart fluttering, gas of the stomach and other troubles.

Mr. H. W. C. Marc Baker, the well-known Expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schintz Bros. Downtown Drug Store is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him.

Dear Sir: I was so mad that I saw red! In the first place, I had finally made up my mind that I'd call up Alan Griffiths and tell him that our engagement was off. Then, when I tried to get him on the telephone, the operator kept giving me the wrong number.

Just as I was about to call up the chief operator and demand some service, the telephone rang. It was Alan's sister Hazel calling! "Listen, dear," Hazel said, "I'm supposed to find out in a tactful way whether you'd rather have a fur coat or a pearl necklace from Alan for Christmas. You know how it is." Perspiring calmly: THAT was my lucky day! —Grace T.

Dear M. F. J.: I was desperate. I had not eaten for two days and my pride would not let me beg.

I decided that I would throw a brick through a jewelry store window, grab what I could, and run. I threw the brick. Just then a flock of cops came around the corner! There was nothing to do. I stood still. The cops went right past me into the shop. A moment later, the proprietor was saying,

"But for the quick thinking of this gentleman" (meaning me) "I would be a goner. The burglar was about to shoot when he, seeing my extremity and realizing that he did not have time to come through the door to save me, threw a brick through the window and laid the burglar out cold." The jeweler made me a handsome present. The reward for the burglar's capture was $1,500. Oh, man! That was MY lucky day! —R. L. G.

FURNISHINGS FOR NEW HOSPITAL ARE GROWING RAPIDLY

Emil Hamilton Pledges to Furnish a Complete Room at Institution

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—With contributions and subscriptions being made daily toward the furnishings of rooms of the new hospital, the board of directors of the hospital board and auxiliary announce the gift of furnishing for a complete room by Emil Hamilton, who heads the list as being the only individual who has taken this much appreciated obligation. The room, states Mr. Hamilton, is to be furnished in minute detail and is to serve as a memorial to the memory of his wife, Lydia Hamilton, who died Jan. 14, 1926.

Other pledges have been made definite, one by the New London Improvement League and the other by the Rotarians. The latter pledge is being made up through individual contributions of members. Other organizations, it is said, await only the formal vote of their members before making formal announcement.

Furniture for the hospital already has arrived and it is expected that the hospital residence will soon be vacated after which little remains but settling of equipment and definite appointment of a housekeeper, nurse, and caretaker. A number of applications for the first two positions have been made but no meeting has yet been held to make the appointments. The house, situated on the corner of Mill and Quincy-sts., is one well appointed to care for the city's sick. Already a number of people have stated their desire to enter as patients to undergo minor operations. Many doctors of the city who have resorted to the plan of turning their own residences into private hospitals, feel that the need of a community hospital is urgent.

CHRISTMAS TO BE HAPPIER, BELIEF

Poverty and Distress in City Is Small, According to Report of Officials

New London—Because New London has again come into the ascendency in the matter of giving employment to its people, Christmas this year is not a dreaded day as has been the case during the past three years. According to Miss Loretta Rice, and civic workers, there are several families to whom the usual good cheer baskets will be welcome, but there is little poverty and distress in the city.

Rotarians and Lions, who have always been generous in providing necessities together with gift baskets containing the supplies for a family Christmas dinner again will furnish the usual quota.

When questioned as to the needs of the city's poor Miss Rice, city nurse, replied that in several cases there is need of winter clothing for children and in a good many homes there is little enough of luxury or even common comforts, but this by comparison with former years is a decided contrast. There is plenty of scope for those who care to divide their comforts with those less fortunate, but there is no dire need of bare necessities.

COUNTY BOARD MUST APPOINT TREASURER

Madison—(P)—Appointment of a county treasurer must be made by the county board and cannot be delegated to a committee composed of its own members. Suel O. Arnold, assistant attorney general said in an opinion given to Bruce M. Blum, district attorney of Green-co.

The county board of Green-co elected a committee of five men to appoint a county treasurer in place of the treasurer-elect who refused to qualify in writing, for the office.

"It is clear," Mr. Arnold said, "that the appointment of a county treasurer involves discretion on the part of the appointing body and is not a mere ministerial act."

"Consequently the power is one which cannot be delegated to a committee. The county board is chosen by the people to represent the county and is charged with a public trust and with the faithful performance of its duties. The public is entitled to the judgment and discretion of each member of that county board in all matters where such elements enter into transactions on behalf of the county."

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no loss time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 512 N. Marcelus Avenue, Menasha, Wis. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation. Adv.

"AND MAY GOD HAVE MERCY ON YOUR SOULS!"

"Jersey Justice," impotent in the Hall case, established a precedent by simultaneously sentencing these four bandits to death in the electric chair. Here they are as they heard from County Judge Edwin C. Caffrey at Newark the words which are to spell their doom the week of January 16. All protested their innocence of the murder of an ice cream company paymaster of which they were convicted. ## Tiny Stage Models Grow Into Lavish Productions

New York—(P)—Bare of actors but looking as though ready for a drama to unfold, doll-like stages gave form to the dreams of the Broadway scenery designer.

In a cubby-hole within a large scenic studio, Watson Barratt, art director, plans in miniature each setting for the productions of the Shuberts, ranging from one-scene dramas to musical shows with from 30 to 40 changes.

The tiny stages are from two to three feet square. Behind the footlights of the theatre the settings are magnified twenty-four times, often to become resplendent spectacles. A scale in which one-half inch represents a foot is followed exactly in every miniature model.

Each scene has a separate stage, the whole model being made of cardboard. Everything—furniture, coloring, lighting effect—is just as it will appear on the real stage.

Chairs, tables, beds and other furniture required in the actual stage setting are made in miniature and arranged as a pattern for the production itself. Scenery designing from beginning to finish is an art. The designer first visualizes the scenery after reading the manuscript of the play. Then he sketches each scene as he has visualized it. The sketches are colored and when finished resemble an architect's picture of some future edifice.

The models are next. Reproduced from the sketches, they are painted and so arranged that with an electric light the designer can see how the stage will look to the audience, even to the lighting effect.

The curtain usually are made from sketches alone. Paint, sprayed and daubed on the plain material, produces the desired effect. The painters stand in a bridge and the huge frames of canvas that are to become "drops" forty to fifty feet high are raised and lowered while they work.
